Author's Preface.

WHILE Philadelphia is universally known and referred to as "The City of Homes," it undoubtedly has right to the title of "The City of Clubs." The reason for this is obvious. Although for many years club-life was not a prominent feature of the Quaker city, and but few social organizations of importance were supported by club men, it has during the past decade seen the birth of scores of clubs of all characters, and there is probably to-day no other city in the United States which can boast of an equal number of purely social clubs, besides the customary political, athletic and business organizations.

In this volume we have endeavored to give a complete list of the most important clubs in Philadelphia, embracing a sketch of each, full roll of members, and what unquestionably add to the value of the publication, are the photographs of the presidents of the clubs and club-houses. A perusal of the contents of "Club Men of Philadelphia" will show the high standard of the work. No photograph has been used without the consent of the original, and this fact alone is a sufficient guarantee of the endorsement of Philadelphia's leading and wealthiest club-men.

To the numerous club officials and other individuals who have, with ready courtesy, rendered invaluable assistance to "Club Men of Philadelphia," we extend hearty thanks.

The article entitled "Club Life in Philadelphia," published in this volume, contains some interesting facts concerning local events, heretofore unknown.

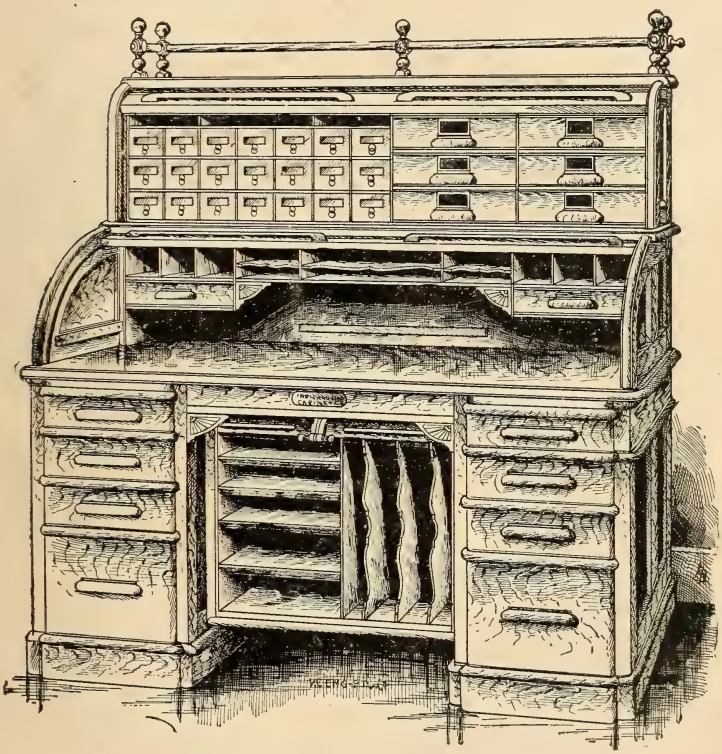

It is probable that in compiling this volume we have overlooked some clubs which deserve to be included, and if such is the case we will be pleased to embody such clubs in the second edition, providing the Secretary will send us the necessary matter at once. The second edition will appear about February 1.

With these few remarks we place before the public this, the first number, with the statement that we propose to make it an annual publication.

Club Life in Philadelphia.

BY THOMAS EARLE WHITE.

ADDISON asserts in the Spectator that "all celebrated clubs were founded upon eating and drinking, which are points where most men agree, and in which the learned and the illiterate, the dull and the airy, the philosopher and the buffoon, can all of them form a part."

This remark was probably true of the clubs of Addison's time in a larger sense than it is of the modern club, where many other bonds of union exist in the expressed purposes of organization. It is worthy of note, however, that The State in Schuylkill, the oldest club in Philadelphia, and one of the oldest at present existing in the world, is an eating and drinking club, where the members don the cook's white cap and apron, and where gastronomy forms the common bond.

From the foundation of The State in Schuylkill, however, until the establishment of the first complete and modern social club an entire century elapsed. In fact, progress in that club life which had for a long time played so important a part in London daily existence, and which was beginning to assume such large proportions in New York, was, in Philadelphia, up to the year 1880, very slow indeed. The Philadelphia, the Union League and the Rittenhouse were the only important clubs antedating that year, and the last mentioned by five years only.

It has often been observed that, conservative as Philadelphia is about adopting the ideas of progress, yet when this inertia is overcome and modern improvement undertaken, a vigor quite stupendous is developed. Large office buildings, apartment houses and many other innovations, so long in coming, are multiplying rapidly. As it has been with these, so is it now with clubs. Conspicuous, at first, principally by reason of their scarcity, no sooner has the tendency to establish them appeared than they spring up on all sides. Every idea upon which any large number of individuals may agree now suffices to call a new club into being. Social exclusiveness, love of art, liberal education, political faith, religious belief, professional occupation, and attachment to various forms of sport, all form the basis for separate organizations ; and a city which prior to the war of the Rebellion possessed but one genuine club, has at present no less than ten within a radius of one square from the corner of Broad and Walnut streets, and a total number within the city limits which must surprise any one who will take the trouble to glance over this volume and count them up.

Those who frequent the clubs of our time rarely have any notion of the great antiquity of these institutions which play so important a part in their own existence.

Organizations for the purpose of obtaining and maintaining political power are probably, in one form or another, as old as human society itself.

The earliest record, however, which we possess of association for social enjoyment boasts the same source from which we derive the fine arts and our ideal of beauty, — ancient Greece. Athenian elegance and Spartan simplicity seem to have combined in producing the earliest known form of social clubs. John Timbs, F. S. A., in his antiquarian researches concerning such institutions, asserts that feasting clubs were in vogue among the ancient Athenians ; and Plutarch, in his description of the public tables in Lycurgan Sparta shows that these consisted of a limited number of persons, electing by ballot to all vacancies, requiring unanimous consent for election, and being governed by self-made rules and regulations, thus presenting but little difference from a modern dining-club.

And in Rome, at a later date, similar clubs appeared. Justus Lipsius describes what, from his particulars, seems to have been a bona fide Roman club ; and Cicero, in De Senectute, records the pleasure he took in frequenting the entertainments given by the confraternities, or banqueting clubs of his era.

It is thus discerned by a glance that facts of the greatest known antiquity give reason and weight to Addison's theory of a convivial basis in the origin of clubs. If, turning from Greece and Rome, we examine the history of the early English clubs, from which ours of the present day are descended, we may reasonably expect to discover a similar basis. Nor shall we find ourselves mistaken, since the first English club of which we have any record was a dining-club, celebrated in his verse by the poet Thomas Occleve, during the reign of Henry IV. This club was known as "La Court de Bone Compagnie," and the poet Chaucer is said to have been one of its members. The most celebrated, however, of these early English associations, and the one which is generally spoken of as the first in Great Britain, was the Friday Street or Bread Street Club, said to have been founded by Sir Walter Raleigh, and of which Ben Jonson, Shakespeare, Beaumont and Fletcher, and other literary lights of the Elizabethan age were members. A discussion, interesting perhaps to antiquarians, has long been raging as to the place of meeting of this club, some maintaining that it was in Friday street, others in Bread street. The following lines by Ben Jonson ought, one would think, to be sufficient to set this momentous question at rest :

> "At Bread Street's Mermaid having dined and merry, > Proposed to go to Holborn in a wherry."

Slight as the importance of the location may be to us at the present time, Jonson's lines are nevertheless of interest in that they call attention to the Mermaid Tavern, and the habit of assembling at that and other taverns, later known as coffee and chocolate-houses,— a habit to which the modern English and our transatlantic clubs owe their direct origin.

What a picture of English life during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries the mention of these public houses evokes! One can imagine an evening passed in one of them at the club with the careless and genial Goldsmith, the sententious Dr. Johnson and the patient biographer James Boswell, Esq., of Auchinleck. One can see again, in fancy, Dean Swift sitting in his corner at the chocolate-house watching the other frequenters concerning whom he was to go away and write his bitter jests; and one can hear again the brilliant wit and sallies across the club-board in the coffee-house where Addison, forgetful of the morrow's headache, and Steele, for the moment oblivious of his dear Mistress Prue, sat and enjoyed the stimulating cup together.

Among the humbler as well as these more famous frequenters of the coffee-houses there were necessarily many who found themselves attracted to one another by similar tastes and ideas. Out of this congeniality sprang various dining-clubs. These usually attached themselves to some favored tavern with which they became identified, but which they still shared with the transient public. It was only a short step for certain establishments to limit admission, and to next become the exclusive property of particular associations. Hence the club of to-day is, in an evolutionary sense, nothing but a number of frequenters who, drawn together by some central purpose, possess their own coffee-house, together with all the comforts and luxury which modern improvements render possible. That this has been the actual line of development is made manifest by the history of the oldest London club now in existence. The Tatler, in his first number, promises that "all accounts of gallantry, pleasure and entertainment shall be under the article of White's Chocolate House;" and this is that self-same White's (now moved to the opposite side of St. James's street), from whose bow-window the aristocratic youth of London to-day watches the occupants of the carriages on their way from Green Park, the Palace and Pall Mall to Picadilly and Hyde Park.

This old chocolate-house, founded in 1698, formerly frequented by Swift and once open to the public, was at a later day, through the influence of the Duke of Devonshire and the celebrated Earl of Chesterfield, turned into a private club which, still flourishing as the most exclusive and aristocratic of all clubs, brings us with a bound to this last decade of the present century.

It has been frequently stated that White's is the oldest existing club. This, however, is an error, and to Philadelphia belongs the honor of possessing the oldest English-speaking club in the world. White's Chocolate House was, it is true, established in 1698, and before any New World club; but it did not close its doors to the public and become a private club until the year 1736. The first gridiron of the Sublime Society of the Steaks, the famous Beefsteak Club of London, bears a date earlier by one year; and The State in Schuylkill was established still earlier in 1732.

With The State in Schuylkill, or rather Colony in Schuylkill—for there were no States in pre-Revolutionary times—began the club-life of old Philadelphia. The State in Schuylkill was originally a fishing company. Its "Castle," as the club-house is designated, was first located upon the banks of the Schuylkill, in the District of Manaiung, beneath which unfamiliar spelling one can easily discern our prosaic Manayunk. In the beginning of this century the castle was floated down to below Gray's Ferry. The rent for the premises occupied in those early days was three sun-perch, which were served up in great state upon one of the pewter platters brought to America by William Penn. A sunfish is the emblem of the club, and fishing is the nominal occupation of the company; the dinners, nevertheless, have always been the prominent feature of the organization. It is the custom to allot one dish for preparation to each member, or "citizen" as he is called, unless he happens to be an officer when he is "councillor," "governor," or "sheriff," as the case may be. New members serve an "apprenticeship," and become, it may well be believed, proficient cooks and compounders of drinks. Hence the fame of these feasts and of the celebrated "Fish-house" punch.

The Colony seems to have been possessed of a proud and independent spirit, for it is stated that only two of its members professed loyalty to the throne at the time of the Revolution, and in 1782 we find the Colony framing a declaration of independence of its own, and declaring itself a free and independent State. A suggestion of the early prominence of this club is afforded by Washington's acceptance of its hospitality in 1787, and again by its entertainment of General Lafayette in 1825.

There are, however, a few other organizations which survive from Colonial times, bringing down to us evidence of a latent tendency that has blossomed forth in the club-spirit so characteristic of to-day. Many Philadelphians hurry daily past the busy corner of Fifth and Chestnut streets. Few, though, have ever noticed, opposite the Drexel building, and back of the edifice that served till recently as the Mayor's office, and more anciently as the home of the Supreme Court of the United States, the upper portion of an old building, the lower floors of which were lately used by the courts, and are now let out for offices. And yet were the hastening multitudes to cast their eyes upward they would perceive a large expanse of blind wall surmounted by an unusual decoration consisting of large white urns from which arise the classic forms of conventionalized flames. It would puzzle most to explain these curious emblems, and what manner of interior lay behind those blank and mysterious walls.

This building is the abode of the oldest scientific club known, and regarded from an American standpoint, the second oldest club upon our continent. In 1740, eight years after the founding of the Colony in Schuylkill, Benjamin Franklin established in Philadelphia the American Philosophical Society. At an early date in its history it obtained the Fifth street property where it has steadily remained in spite of the vastly increased value of property in that neighborhood and the tempting offers of purchase which this value has induced. In this old house Washington sat for his well-known portrait by the artist Peale. Here, too, are treasured all the possessions and relics gathered by the society during its long existence, including valuable books, rare manuscripts, letters, autographs, a long line of portraits of its distinguished presidents, and the chair in which Thomas Jefferson sat as he drafted the Declaration of Independence.

The first three presidents were: Dr. Franklin, the astronomer Dr. Rittenhouse and Thomas Jefferson, third president, both of this honorable body, and of his country. The early membership includes many names still extant, as those of prominent Philadelphia families. On the roll we find Judge Peters, Chief Justice Tilghman, Dr. Adam Kuhn, Bishop White, Thomas and Phineas Bond, Dr. Caspar Wistar, Dr. Chapman and Nicholas Biddle. Besides Mr. Jefferson, two other members of the society, Mr. Madison and Mr. Adams, attained the presidential chair of the United States. Many of the great scientists, statesmen and philosophers of Europe, as well as of America, have, during the past century, been non-resident members, and many are the distinguished guests whom the society has entertained at its dinners, noteworthy amongst whom have been the Marquis de Lafayette on his revisit to this country in 1824, and the Baron von Humboldt on his return from his famous South American tour in the beginning of the century.

Out of the American Philosophical Society sprang a supper-club of smaller membership, an inner-circle as it were, which must be recognized as one of the landmarks in early Philadelphia club-life. Dr. Caspar Wistar, who succeeded Mr. Jefferson to the presidency of the society in 1815, had for many years previous to his election maintained the custom of inviting his friends to Saturday night reunions at his dwelling on Fourth street, where the evenings were mainly passed in intellectual discourse. Most of Dr. Wistar's Philadelphia friends who attended these gatherings were members of the Philosophical Society, and nearly all the distinguished strangers who, from time to time, visited the city, found their way to this hospital mansion. When Dr. Wistar died in 1818, the want of an intellectual centre was immediately felt and certain of his friends, all old frequenters of his soirées, formed a club to give a number of supper parties during each year to fill the place of the now vanished entertainments. In commemoration of Dr. Wistar and his hospitality, it was decided to call them the "Wistar Parties." A vignette of the doctor in profile with wig and queue adorned the invitations; and membership was limited to those belonging to the Philosophical Society.

The club continued in a flourishing existence until 1860, when the breaking out of the Rebellion brought its meetings to a conclusion. The suppers of the Saturday Night Club, which were well known for many years subsequent to the termination of the war, have generally been considered and spoken of as a continuance of the Wistar Parties; but this is denied by Anne Hollingsworth Wharton in her admirable little book, "Through Colonial Doorways," within whose covers those who are interested concerning these associations will find interesting and minute information. Miss Wharton calls attention to the fact that membership in the Philosophical Society was not a prerequisite to membership in the Saturday Night Club, and she states further that the reorganized Wistar Parties of 1886 are the only lineal descendants of the former gatherings held within the hospitable walls of the old mansion at Fourth and Prune.

No article upon the organizations of old Philadelphia would be complete without a passing mention of the Assemblies. Their exact age is unknown; but Watson in his "Annals" gives a copy of the subscription list of 1749, which is sixteen years before the opening of the celebrated Almack's Assembly Rooms in London. This list of 1749, the original of which is preserved among the archives of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, contains many of the names which appear on the lists of recent years, though it is quite as remarkable for the array of names which have disappeared from Philadelphia fashionable life as for the presence of those that remain. There is little perhaps in these elegant balls to connect them with the club idea, except that the expenses are divided, which is the original meaning of the word "club" in its derivative sense. * Unlike Almack's, of which both men and women were members, having, when once elected, the freedom of the Assembly Rooms, the Philadelphia Assemblies are directed by a Board of Managers, six in number, who by electing their own successors form a perpetuity. These managers have complete control and can add new subscribers and drop old ones at their discretion.

There are not wanting among the irreverent those who suggest that there may be no greater connection between the Assemblies of to-day and those of 1749 than exists between any two entertainments devoted to dancing. The name, they argue, was a common one in Colonial days, being applied to any large gathering, to no matter what purpose devoted, from dancing to making laws; and they maintain that it is now adopted for the purpose merely of assuming an antique air. It is probable that a direct succession of the Board of Managers prior to 1865 would be difficult to establish; but there is little doubt that with the exception of breaks in war times the Assemblies have come to us in a practically straight descent from those of 1749; and no matter what the uncertainty as to age, there is, among those who have attended these balls in recent times, no dispute in regard to their brilliancy, elegance and beauty.

Ancient associations were, of course, lacking in the completeness of character which we now consider essential to the idea of a club. Some particular feature or features only were embraced in their purpose; yet their history must be of interest in outlining the course through which the club, as an institution, has passed in reaching its present high stage of development.

* Anglo Saxon.—Cleofian, to cleave; i. e., to split up; to divide.

The first genuine club, in the modern sense, established in Philadelphia, was that which erected the well-known building at Thirteenth and Walnut, and adopted the name of the city for its own. Founded in 1834, before the Union Club, of New York, and before the Somerset Club, of Boston, or the Maryland Club, of Baltimore, the Philadelphia Club has the priority, not only among the important local clubs, but among those of the country. This fact has much to do with the prestige which it has always maintained.

The Philadelphia Club having no particular mission beyond that of furnishing a home for its members with all the comforts of modern life, has, from its inception, belonged to the exclusively social classification, in which it has for companions the Rittenhouse and the Markham. The Rittenhouse, with its charming situation overlooking the Square, is probably the most popular of the purely social clubs in the city. The Markham is of recent origin, and its membership is sought by particularly young men most of whom enter the two older clubs at a later day. It bids fair to fill the relationship to these that the Junior Oxford and Cambridge in London does to its senior club.

These three are the essentially fashionable clubs of Philadelphia which seek to offer the luxury and advantages of the club to an exclusive set, and for whom exclusiveness may be said to form the very raison d'être of the organizations. There are, however, a number of other clubs possessing some special purpose as the basis of combination, and which are, therefore, inclined to open their doors to all those of good standing and repute who belong to the same interest. Such clubs, though usually of more serious purpose, and of more value to the city at large, can never hope to compare, and perhaps have no desire to vie, with the others in mere social standing. Their greater importance and influence with the community is probably sufficient compensation for their loss.

Of clubs with a purpose or central idea outside of the mere maintenance of a club-house, the Union League is the first example that naturally rises to the mind. The League was born in the troublous times of the Rebellion when politics were of supreme moment, and now, when the fierce antagonisms of that period are subdued, it still maintains its prominence as the leading political club of the city, and, while still preserving its Republican character, no longer considers the social side the less predominant. Established in 1862, second in foundation amongst the important Philadelphia modern clubs, and one year older than the New York club of the same name, the League achieved instant prosperity. It occupied three houses in rapid succession. The first was at Eleventh and Chestnut in the Girard block, which consisted then of a residential row; and the year 1865 found it occupying its present quarters. Its house, though by no means the most homelike, is, in point of convenience and equipment, the finest club-house in the city.

Other political clubs, of which there are many within the city limits, are, as a rule, of lesser importance, the most prominent being the Young Men's Democratic and the Union Republican. An organization of this nature, which at one time bade fair to equal the League in importance, came to an early end. The Reform Club, which sprang out of the movement for municipal reform in 1871, obtained for its residence the fine old Florence mansion on Chestnut street, above Fifteenth, and embarked on a seemingly propitious career. Losing a few years later, in the midst of its prosperity, the superb property which was held on lease only, the club moved further west upon Chestnut street; but from the time of removal it took to the downward path, and, after a few years of waning strength, passed out of existence.

The desire to aid artistic development has been prominent among the influences which have led to the creation of clubs in Philadelphia. The Rittenhouse has not always been, as now, a purely social club. It was established in 1875, under the name of the Social Art Club, for the purpose, as recited in its charter, of "promoting literary, artistic and antiquarian tastes." Its first president was Theodore Cuyler, and among its charter members were such well-known connoisseurs and art patrons as the late James L. Claghorn and Henry C. Gibson. While it might not be openly acknowledged that the original purposes of formation have been abandoned, it is tacitly understood that the Rittenhouse, though still a "Social," is no longer an "Art" club; a fact that has been emphasized by its change of name. The field thus vacated has, however, been promptly filled. The Art Club, of Philadelphia, incorporated in 1887, has met with rapid and unexampled success. Its total membership quickly rose to over one thousand, and its truly artistic building has for the last three years been a special adornment to the city. Its social side, which is active, is nevertheless kept in strict subservience to the art feature. In its handsome galleries there are held yearly several exhibitions of paintings in oil and water color, statuary and architectural drawings, besides occasional displays of tapestries, ceramics, and objects of decorative art. The Art Club also maintains an art scholarship, the winner of which is supported during his studies abroad. The influence in exciting interest and cultivating a taste for art in Philadelphia has been most marked, and by stirring older institutions, such as the Academy of Fine Arts, into friendly rivalry, the Art Club has bestowed indirect benefits little short of those flowing from its direct influence. Among the smaller organizations devoted to the same end may be mentioned the Sketch Club and the Art Workers' Guild, which are devoted more to the interchange of ideas amongst artists themselves, than to the spread of these among the people at large.

Like the clubs for artists, clubs for members of the same profession and those engaged in the same occupation are now springing into being. The Manufacturers' Club possesses the finest home amongst the organizations of this class, but it seems to be wanting in the activity which one would expect. The Lawyers' Club is about to open its doors amid promising auspices; and the club for journalists, known as the Pen and Pencil, is in active operation. One who enjoys the freedom of this latter club's cozy, but unpretentious house upon Eleventh street, may here pass some of the most delightful evenings imaginable; and, if he take an interest in the artists of the stage, he is sure to meet the more prominent of these from time to time at the famous entertainments of the club, known as the "Nights in Bohemia." There are two Mercantile Clubs, one Travelers' Club, a United Service Club, and many others whose names indicate the occupations to which the members belong. As if to give a humorous touch to the extensive movement toward clubs of occupation, a Waiters' Club has been formed, an organization whose entertainments might worthily employ the pen of another Thackeray.

Clubs which are difficult to classify with nicety, or who occupy classes by themselves also exist. The University Club is the leading example of the latter, and, as the name suggests, its membership is limited to college-bred men. Everyone is familiar with the quaintly original, but thoroughly artistic, architecture of its building on Walnut street below Juniper; and it is gratifying to observe that, though recently languishing and in danger of collapse through mere inanition, the club has recently received an infusion of new life, is taking in desirable members rapidly, and promises to be unusually successful. Another organization worthy of note is the Penn Club, which is devoted principally to holding receptions in honor of guests distinguished in statesmanship, science, literature, or the like, who visit the city.

The class, however, which boasts the most varied and numerous membership is that devoted to the sports and out-of-door life. In a sketch of limited length, simple mention of these is all that can be attempted. There are the Country Club, with its charming property at Bala, and the great Cricket clubs at Manheim, Elmwood and Haverford, which, with their club-houses and ample grounds, are all beautiful country clubs, possessing every advantage, both practical and æsthetic, in addition to the cricket feature. The numerous boat clubs that line the Schuylkill, above Fairmount, display a characteristic phase of Philadelphia life when springtime brings forth their full activity. The up-river houses rejoicing in the names, the Anchorage, the Button, Ringstettin and the Lilacs, and belonging respectively to the Philadelphia, the Bachelors', the Undine and the University Barge clubs, form combinations of the boat, the driving and the cooking-club, attractively and expensively equipped, and serving in winter as private road-houses, in summer as points of destination for boating parties, and at all times as places for suppers and convivial meetings. In mentioning driving clubs, the Rabbit should not be omitted. Its house, on the western confines of Fairmount Park, serves much the same purposes for its members as the up-river houses with the boating eliminated. And with similar houses, but devoted to the saddle rather than the reins, are the two hunt clubs, the Rose Tree and the Radnor. These are of recent creation, but the first hunt club of Philadelphia, the famous Gloucester Fox Hunting Club, was established in 1766, and enjoyed an existence of over half a century. Passing from horse to boat again, we have the two yacht clubs, the Corinthian and the Philadelphia, with comfortable houses and fine anchorage at Essington, on the Delaware, and both devoted to this form of sport which has been making such rapid headway in Philadelphia as well as at all other centres along the eastern coast. There is a Coaching Club, a Turf Club, a Union Billiard Club, and a number of athletic clubs, first amongst whom, on account of its superior accommodations, may be mentioned the Athletic Club of the Schuylkill Navy, and next the Fencing and Sparring Club of greater age and more fashionable membership, but inferior quarters. This club has, however, in contemplation the erection of a superb edifice. The Racquet Club has a goodly list of members and a commodious house.

Dining clubs are quite numerous in Philadelphia. The Clover Club has for many years attracted the most attention, but well-known also are the Five O'clock Club, and the Skillet and Pan. The Farmers' Club is a small dining club with a most distinguished membership ; and two dining clubs have grown out of the Art Club, the Nameless and the Symposiac. The first devotes the conversation over the board to art topics, the latter to social and economic questions, and both entertain men distinguished in their particular lines.

Before concluding this hasty résumé of Philadelphia clubs, it is necessary that momentary mention at least should be made of the two clubs established by and for women. The fashionable and exclusive woman's club is the Acorn, situated on Walnut street, below Fifteenth ; the useful and philanthropic one is the New Century, with a handsome building, designed and erected by one of its own members, on Twelfth street. The latter club is an active and strong organization, which besides furnishing its advantages to members, is also engaged in offering to humbler individuals of the same sex opportunities to gain knowledge and skill that may render them industrially independent. The success of this club is already noteworthy, and it promises to become an important factor in Philadelphia life.

THE ART CLUB.

THE Art Club, of Philadelphia, is the outgrowth of a feeling that had long existed in Philadelphia, that the interests of art would be more effectually promoted by such an institution than by any other means.

It was organized by the artists themselves, and those directly interested in this artistic purpose, and while it is one of the most delightful and successful of Philadelphia's clubs, considered merely as a social organization, its first and main object remains, as it was at the beginning, the fostering of the aims and interests of art.

In 1885 the officers of The Philadelphia Society of Artists, which had held fairly successful exhibitions for several years, but which felt the need of a stronger following than it seemed likely to command so long as these occasional exhibitions were the only attractions it could offer to its members, made the first formal appeal for support on the new basis in a letter written by Mr. James B. Sword, and signed by about forty prominent citizens, and on January 21, 1886, the first meeting of those whose interest had been enlisted, was held at the Colonnade Hotel. A permanent organization was effected, and the following officers elected January 5, 1887 : President, Edward Shippen ; Vice-Presidents, E. R. Wood, J. C. Strawbridge ; Treasurer, Thomas S. Harrison ; Secretary, L. W. Miller. The club's first exhibition and reception was held at the Academy of the Fine Arts, February 15, 1887.

In March of the same year the club purchased the building which it occupies at present, at 220 South Broad street.

Extensive alterations and additions have been made to the house from time to time, including the building of an art gallery, which was added in 1889. A nearly continuous succession of exhibitions is held here throughout the season. The regular annual exhibition of new works, by American artists, being held in the fall, and followed by a loan exhibition, one of water colors, one of architectural designs of objects of industrial arts, etc.

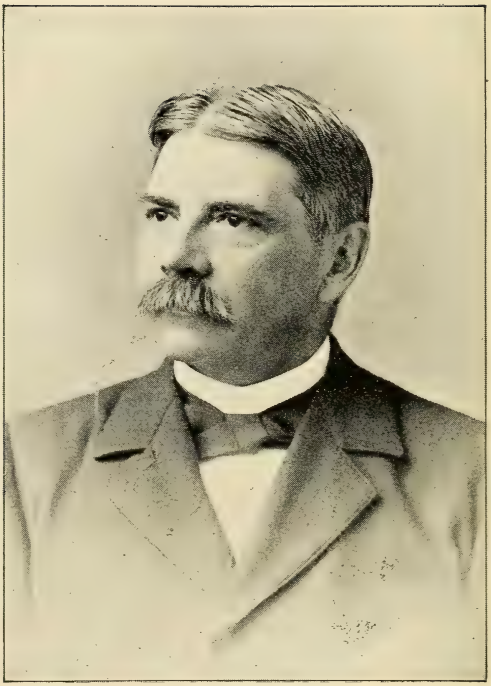

These exhibitions are practically free, as club members are privileged to issue complimentary tickets to an unlimited extent. The club awards two gold medals yearly for painting and one for sculpture.

Receptions are also tendered from time to time to persons distinguished in art or literature. Among those whom the club has honored in this way are P. F. Rothermel, the Kendalls, Julia Marlowe, E. C. Stedman, E. A. Albey, John S. Sargent, Prof. Halsey C. Ives, W. C. Brownell, F. Marion Crawford and Mrs. John Drew.

A course of lectures on the work of the different art institutions of Philadelphia was given in 1890, by President Edw. H. Coates, of the Academy, Miss Emily Sartain, Principal L. W. Miller, of the School of Industrial Art, by Prof. William A. Mason and Mr. Frank Miles Day. Lectures have also been given before the club by H. Bloomfield Bare, George B. Wood and Mr. Henry Nevill.

The library received a bequest of $5000 from the late George S. Pepper, and is an important factor in the usefulness of the club.

The present membership of the club is over one thousand. The entrance fee is $100, and the annual dues are $50 for resident members and $25 for non-resident and artist members.

ATHLETIC CLUB OF THE SCHUYLKILL NAVY, 1626 ARCH STREET.

ATHLETIC CLUB OF THE SCHUYLKILL NAVY.

THIS organization was founded in 1884, and is the result of the suggestion of John F. Huneker that an athletic club be formed by the clubs of the Schuylkill Navy. At a meeting of the naval board held in April of the same year, the committee on organization reported the assured success of such an undertaking. In August of that year, the constitution and by-laws of the club were adopted and officers elected for the year. Later, in the fall, the club secured quarters at 1913 Market street, where athletic entertainments were given monthly. From its birth the Athletic Club of the Schuylkill Navy was a success, and the membership increased rapidly.

It soon became evident that the Market street quarters were inadequate, and a committee was appointed to prepare plans for a new club house of modern design. The property on Arch street below Seventeenth, was purchased, and a magnificent building, containing all the conveniences and luxuries of a club-house, was erected thereon.

The house of the Navy is a gray stone building, six stories in height, and cost, in connection with the property, upwards of $200,000. At present there are about 1500 members on the rolls. During the season club receptions and entertainments of various kinds are held. Following is the Board of Directors: Dr. Henry Beates, Jr., Dr. Thomas Fenton, William B. Wood, John S. W. Holton, Joseph H. Baker, Thomas Earle White, Dr. Conrad Berens, Horace E. McPherson, Frank R. Shattuck, Frank N. Barksdale, Charles R. Dundore, Harry McMillan, Walter D. Harrison, Harry C. Francis, William A. Holman. The annual Inter-Club Pool Tournaments are generally held in the racquet court of the house

THE BELMONT CRICKET CLUB.

THE Belmont Cricket Club was organized in West Philadelphia, September 3, 1874, with about fifteen members. The first grounds were located at Fortieth and Aspen streets, and were retained until 1876, when the club removed to Forty-eighth and Baltimore avenue, leasing about nine acres from the Hamilton Land Association. At that time it taxed its resources to raise $500 wherewith to erect the modest two-story frame building, which served for a janitor's residence and club-house. It had superabundant vitality, however, and was not only able to hold its own fairly well against the strong elevens of the older cricket organizations, but in 1882 came to the front and wrested from the Young America Club the Halifax Cup, the emblem of the championship of Philadelphia. Three times since then it has been equally successful, while in tennis it has in M. D. Smith, the strongest player in Philadelphia, and one able to hold his own worthily against the best experts at the Newport Casino.

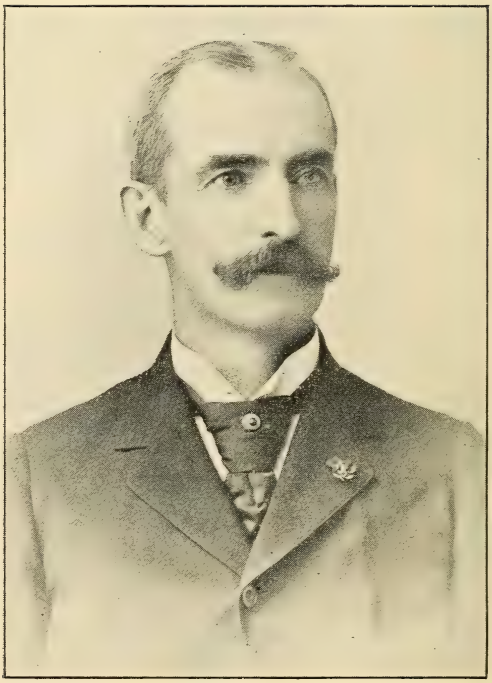

In 1884 it purchased and improved a fine ground at Fifty-eighth and Darby Road, but had no sooner begun to use it than the new line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to Philadelphia ran diagonally across it, and compelled the selection of new quarters. The club was then fortunate enough to secure about ten acres in its present admirable location at Forty-ninth and Chester avenue, immediately adjoining a station on the Philadelphia and Baltimore Central Railroad, within easy walking distance of its West Philadelphia members, and about ten minutes distant from the Broad Street Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad. A comfortable cricket house was at once erected, containing cosy accommodations for the Ladies' Associate Organization, a club-house provided for the Juniors, thirty tennis courts laid out, offering the finest facilities in the country for that game, and a cricket table provided which has few equals anywhere. To meet the wants of its constantly increasing membership, it has just finished a handsome new club-house, containing charming quarters for the ladies; billiard, reading and dancing rooms, bowling alleys and shuffle board, and well provided with spacious porches overlooking both the tennis and cricket tables; and also the prettiest grandstand in the country, with a seating capacity for 1200 people. The largest number of runs, 525, ever made in this country in a single inning in a first-class match, was made by the Philadelphia Eleven in the first match with the Australians on the Belmont grounds in the early part of October of this year.

The club owes its prosperity largely to the active work it has done in the promotion of athletic sports. It was the first to establish a junior organization, and has won its victories mainly through the skill of the players supplied from its ranks. It was also the first to establish a Ladies' Organization, which has been the right hand of the club, and has among its members the ex-champion lady tennis player of Philadelphia.

It furnishes a worthy contingent for all the great international cricket matches, and the stand made by two of its members, Crawford Coates and Walter Scott, in the recent contest with Lord Hawke's team, is one of the memorable incidents in American cricket.

It has a membership in all of over 700, and has undoubtedly a long and prosperous career before it.

THE BELMONT DRIVING CLUB.

IN the year 1888 this club was organized and in 1889 was incorporated by a number of gentlemen interested in the breeding and training of horses, for the purpose of "Establishing and maintaining a well-regulated driving park and pleasure grounds, with facilities for the exercise, training and exhibition of horses, and such other innocent and athletic sports as may be proper and lawful."

The fixed capital stock of the corporation is $100,000, divided into two thousand shares of the par value of $50 each.

Sixteen hundred shares of stock have been issued in blocks of five shares each. No one can be a member of the club unless he owns at least five shares of stock and shall have been nominated for membership by a member, and seconded by two other members, and have been unanimously elected by the Board of Directors, at a regular meeting, after the application shall have been posted for two weeks. The present limit of membership is three hundred and twenty.

The annual meetings are held on the first Thursday of May in each year. There are no annual dues or charges, and assessments are not allowed. The revenue from rentals and exhibitions is sufficient to maintain the club and keep the grounds and improvements in repair. The club and its property are free of debt.

The club owns a new, large and commodious club house, having all the modern conveniences. The club rooms, ladies' parlors and porches are kept for the exclusive use of the members of the club, their families and guests of the club; the other portion is occupied by a lessee, who maintains a licensed hotel, with ample accommodations for the public.

The grounds, consisting of about seventy-five acres of land, are situated on Meeting House Lane, in Montgomery County, about equi-distant from Cynwyd Station, on the Schuylkill Division, and Narberth Station on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Among the other improvements may be mentioned an excellent track, a full mile in length, built at great expense, with much care, by Seth Griffin, the well-known race track builder. It is one of the fastest circular tracks in the country. A grand stand which will accommodate 5000 persons, a never-failing artesian well and pump, with tanks having a capacity of 20,000 gallons; a gas machine, supplying light for the club house and grounds; about 200 box stalls for horses, and over 100 private sheds for the shelter of teams.

THE CLOVER CLUB.

THE Clover Club was organized in January, 1882, "essentially as a dining association of men who appreciate the joys of the table and the pleasures of hospitality." The main promoters were journalists connected with the leading dailies of the city, and from the beginning the governing element in the club has been the newspaper members. Other professions than that of journalism were necessarily included in the founders. Since its organization the club has been famous for the numerous elaborate dinners it has given, and among its guests on these festive and memorable occasions have been men of local, national and world-wide renown.

The club met for the first time at dinner at the Girard House in January, 1882. For a number of years the dinners of the club have been given at the Bellevue Hotel, and upon these occasions the members and guests surround a large table, in the shape of a four-leaved clover. The last elected member of the club is called "the baby," and he must sit at the table in a high chair especially made for that purpose. The loving cup of the club is a magnificent three-handled tankard, of baronial massiveness, appropriately and exquisitely ornamented with green, gold-bronze clover leaves in relief, and the inscription,

"While we live, we live in clover;
When we die, we die all over,"

and the sentiment in French, a votre santé. The cup was the gift of Thomas Potter, Jr. There are three classes of membership—active, non-resident and honorary. The admission fee is $20 for active members, and dues $20. Non-resident members are taxed $20 annually, while honorary members are exempt from both dues and initiation fee.

COLONIAL CLUB, GREEN AND HARVEY STREETS, GERMANTOWN.

THE COLONIAL CLUB.

THE country store and the tavern were the forerunners of the modern club-house, arm chairs and rugs having supplanted counters and sanded floors, but that delightful companionship formerly found at the store and tavern will forever remain the attraction which keeps up the membership of clubs.

The Washington Hotel, Heft's and Wunder's, were all frequented in their day, and it was not until the tavern fell into disrepute that club life became known in Germantown. The Germantown Club, with John Wister, Jr., of Vernon, as its president, began its life early in the forties. It numbered among its membership many of Germantown's most respected citizens. This same Germantown Club still exists in name and organization, but does not maintain a club-house.

It was in deference to the original club that junior was added to the name it adopted, for the Colonial first called itself the Germantown, its members at that time being under the impression that the Germantown Club had disbanded.

Colonial architecture was coming into vogue when the beautiful club-house at the corner of Green and Harvey streets was built, and the name Colonial seemed so entirely appropriate that it was adopted.

The two rooms over the office of the Germantown Telegraph, on Chelten avenue, will long be agreeably remembered as its first abiding place. When its membership increased, a commodious house at the corner of Green and Rittenhouse streets was rented, which enabled it to add a billiard and pool table to its equipment.

The charter clearly states that the object of the corporation is to unite in a social organization the men of Germantown and vicinity for the purpose of mutual improvement and social intercourse.

The new house brought with it increased responsibilities, which the club was prompt to recognize, and which were met in a liberal spirit, and the expectation of increased membership has been realized.

An experience of two years has abundantly proved that Germantown has needed just such an organization as the Colonial, for it has flourished and increased in usefulness.

It caters to the mental as well as to the physical wants of its members, as lectures of intellectual merit have been made a part of the winter entertainments, and its future success seems well assured.

The annual meeting is held in March, when officers are elected for the ensuing year. The number of resident members is limited to 125. There are but two classes of members, resident and non-resident.

THE COLUMBIA CLUB. N. W. COR. BROAD AND OXFORD STREETS.

THE COLUMBIA CLUB.

IN the month of May, 1878, the Columbia Club was organized for "social intercourse and the promotion of good fellowship among its members." It grew steadily in membership and importance until May, 1888, when it was incorporated. Since then the growth has been rapid. The present membership is limited to 500, which has been filled, and a number of applicants are now on the waiting list.

The present club house, which cost nearly $100,000, was built by the club, and completed and occupied in the month of May, 1891.

The annual meetings are held on the second Wednesday of January of each year, when there are elected by the members a president, a first and second vice-president and a board of twelve governors, who constitute the Board of Management. The secretary and treasurer are elected by the board. John T. Bailey is president; Albert H. Dingee, first vice-president; Franklin M. Harris, second vice-president, and Hiram E. Lutz, treasurer. The initiation fee is $50, and the annual dues $30, payable semi-annually in advance. All applications for membership are referred to a committee of nine members, elected from the members at large, no one of whom can be an officer or a governor.

No applicant can be elected to membership without a favorable recommendation of this committee.

The club is now recognized as one of the leading social clubs of the city; among its members are many well-known gentlemen prominent in official and private life.

The discussion of all questions of a political or sectarian nature is strictly prohibited.

THE FARMERS' CLUB.

THE Farmers' Club, of Pennsylvania, is an offshoot of "The Philadelphia Society for Promoting Agriculture," the oldest agricultural society in America. It was founded on the eleventh of February, 1785, by the following gentlemen: Colonel George Morgan, General John Cadwalader, Colonel John Nixon, distinguished in the military service of our country; Robert Morris, Thomas Willing, Sam'l Meredith, eminent as patriots and merchants; James Wilson, Edward Shippen, Richard Peters, ornaments of the bench and bar; Benjamin Rush, John Jones, Adam Kuhn, George Logan, heads of the medical profession; and George Clymer, Henry Hill, Phileman Dickinson, Samuel Vaughan, Tench Frances, Charles Thompson. Richard Wells, Samuel Powel, Lambert Cadwalader, John B. Bradley, all distinguished in either local or national concerns. From the seed planted by these men the innumerable National, State and County Societies have grown.

In the year 1847 it was deemed advisable to do something to promote social intercourse among the members, and a number of them associated themselves together as "The Farmers' Club." The design was to meet together once a month, at the houses of the different members, go over their farms and make a report of the proceedings to the next meeting of the society. A lunch or dinner was provided by the person whose farm was visited. These meetings having proved very agreeable during the summer months, the members felt loth to forego their meetings during the winter. A number of city members who, although having no farms, felt great interest in the subject of agriculture, were therefore elected, and the club then held, during the three or four winter months, their meetings in the city.

This plan is still kept up. Mr. George Blight is the only one now living of the original members. The two next oldest are Judge Biddle, who was elected May 25, 1859, and Mr. Frederick Fraley, the year after. The presidency of the club is held in turn by each of the members for one year. The secretary's office is held by the incumbent until death or resignation. Mr. George Blight, after a continuous service for many years, resigned on account of his impaired health a year or two ago, and his place is now filled by Mr. George W. Childs.

The present members of the club in the order of their admission, are Mr. George Blight, Judge Biddle, Mr. Frederick Fraley, Mr. Justice Green, Hon. J. Donald Cameron, Mr. George W. Childs, Mr. E. P. Wilbur, Mr. George B. Roberts, Mr. John R. Fell, Mr. Clement Griscom, Mr. A. J. Cassatt, Mr. Wayne McVeagh and Mr. Rudolph Ellis. Their meetings take place on the first Thursday before the full moon during every month of the year.

It is a very common error to suppose that agriculture can only be promoted by those who labor with their own hands. However well versed they may be in the subject, they rarely have the capital necessary to enable them to run the risks of agricultural experiments. Living on the products of the farm, they cannot risk losing their income by an experiment that may not succeed. Men who do not rely on their farms for support, often do more by their failures to extend the knowledge of the science, than those who pass their lives in following a beaten routine. It will be found that the finest breeds of horses, the best breeds of sheep, hogs, cows, poultry, have all been introduced into the country by gentlemen "addicted" to agriculture.

GYMNASIUM OF FENCING AND SPARRING CLUB, 36 SOUTH SIXTEENTH ST.

THE FENCING AND SPARRING CLUB.

ON September 22, 1860, a meeting of young men, who were interested in fencing and sparring, and other manly exercises, was called at 724 Chestnut street, for the purpose of organizing a club. Their idea was to foster the manly sports of fencing and sparring and also to offer to members the advantages of a gymnasium. It was among the first of its kind in this country or England, and antedating the Boston, New York and Manhattan A. C. by years. Fairman Rogers was elected president and Richard L. Ashhurst secretary and treasurer. A constitution was adopted, and it was decided to open the club on October 1, 1860. The entrance fee was fixed at $5.00, the annual dues at $20, and apartments were secured in the second story of the Edwards Building, at Broad and Walnut streets. The treasurer's book shows the following members, in order of inscription to January 1, 1861 :

Howard Ellis, J. A. Kay, C. S. Hutchinson, W. Meredith, E. M. Davis, E. N. Hallowell, R. L. Ashhurst, F. H. Jones, S. Hazard, Jr., C. E. Richards, Dr. J. H. Packard, Jas. R. Boyer, H. G. Brown, D. P. Buckley, F. Florence, George Gilpin, Harvey Goddard, S. Groome, H. Richards, F. Rogers, H. Winsor, W. Winsor, J. P. Brinton, J. T. Mitchell, J. Hamilton Kuhn, C. F. Lennig, C. Smith, C. Chauncey, E. Perot, Jas. Starr, H. Richards, E. C. Pechin, W. P. Pepper, J. J. Brown, J. B. Fassitt, H. G. Browne, W. Reed, F. Brown, Jr., J. Ledyard Hodge, D. Pepper, E. A. Lewis, G. C. Potts, C. H. T. Collis, T. R. Tunis, E. R. Robinson, M. McEuen, H. B. Coxe, F. Shippen, P. Jauretche, C. M. Willing, F. H. Moss, H. C. Egbert, J. H. Edwards, W. Blanchard, T. D. Rodney, T. Harrison, R. H. Ellis, C. Fisher, T. M. Hall, J. W. Grigg, H. M. Wetherill, R. L. Willing, F. A. Lancaster, E. G. Trasel, B. Robinson, R. Kelly, H. Lapsley, J. M. Walton, J. N. Crawford, W. H. Camac, J. L. Welsh and J. Paul.

Justin Bonnafous, formerly a sword master in the French army, was the fencing master, and Alf. Walker the boxing teacher. During the late war the club was inactive, most of its members being engaged in the struggle, and it was not until October 19, 1868, that a reorganization was effected at the old rooms of the club, resulting in the election of Dr. Caspar Wister as president, Judge James T. Mitchell as secretary, and James Starr as treasurer. The latter office was filled the next year by J. M. Power Wallace, who held it until his resignation in 1890.

In November, 1875, the club moved from its rooms to the building at the southwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets. In November, 1877, this building was partially destroyed by fire, and the club-room so much damaged that another removal resulted December 6, 1877, to 1301 Chestnut street, whence it was transferred to the old Concert Hall building, 1219 Chestnut street, where it remained eight years, until it moved to its present location, No. 36 South Sixteenth street. On the reorganization of the club in 1868, it was fortunate in obtaining the services of Justin Bonnafous again as fencing master, and of Joseph Evans as boxing master. In 1873 the present teacher of sparring, James Murray, was appointed.

In 1882, Robert Reid, formerly a cavalryman in the English army, took Mr. Bonnafous' place and held it till 1882, when C. M. Matchett was appointed. In 1883 Justin Bonnafous, Jr., son of the former teacher, assumed this position and still retains it.

The club has now 447 senior and 71 junior members; is out of debt, and has some capital well invested, with the prospect in the near future of a club-house better adapted to its growing requirements.

Town Topics,

The Journal of Society

NEW YORK (THURSDAY).

$4.00 per year.

$2.00 for 6 months. $1.00 for 3 months.

This great 32 page weekly is universally recognized as the most complete weekly journal in the world. Its "Saunterings" columns are inimitable. Its society news, especially of the doings of the 400 of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and all over the world, is not equaled by any newspaper.

Its financial department is authority with all bankers and brokers. Its "Literary Show" notes on current literature is by the ablest of reviewers. Its "Afield and Afloat" makes it the most interesting paper for all lovers of sport, yachting, foot-ball, rowing, shooting, fishing, etc. Its "On the Turf," excels all other racing notes. Its burlesques, poems and jokes are the cleverest.

Its stories are by the best writers, among them Amelie Rives, F. Marion Crawford, Edgar Fawcett, Julian Hawthorne, Catulle Mendes, Rudyard Kipling, Barry Pain, Ambrose Bierce, Maurice Barres, Anatole France, Francois Coppe, Gilbert Parker Paul Bourget, etc., and are, even if a trifle risque, yet always clever, bright and pretty, without coarseness or anything to offend the most refined and moral woman.

A new feature in Town Topics each week is a portrait, by a remarkably clever artist, done in the latest and highest art of Color-Printing, of a man eminently distinguished in some walk of life.

THE FOUR-IN-HAND CLUB.

FOR a number of years four-in-hand driving has steadily grown in favor among the votaries of this kind of amusement in Philadelphia, but it was not until the winter of 1890 that measures were taken to form a permanent organization, composed of owners of such turnouts. Early in that year a number of the more enthusiastic whips formed "The Four-in-Hand Club," with the object of encouraging this class of driving. It was resolved that "in order to be eligible to membership an applicant must be of age, and shall exhibit to the officers of the club satisfactory evidence both of his ability to drive four horses, and of his actual ownership of a regulation coach or brake built for the purpose of four-in-hand driving, without top, to carry seven or more persons on seats facing forward or backward, with standing pole. A son or brother of a member of this club shall be eligible to membership upon showing his ability to drive to the officers of the club, but shall have no vote." The annual meeting of the club is held in March of each year. Since its foundation, the most important event connected with the club has been its annual parade, which occurs about the middle of May, and on such occasions the parade is led by the president, secretary and treasurer, in the order named, followed by the other members whose places have been decided by lot, with the vice-president bringing up the rear. The review by the president takes place in Fairmount Park, and a banquet and dance in the evening wind up the festivities of the day. As none but members of Philadelphia's "400" belong to the club, they and their guests upon these occasions are thoroughly representative of the best society of the Quaker city.

THE FRANKLIN CHESS CLUB.

Rooms 1011 and 1012 Betz Building.

CHESS in Philadelphia had its first impetus on the classic ground of the Athenæum, Sixth and Adelphi streets, and there Mr. Charles Vezin, the "father of Philadelphia chess," founded, about the middle of the century, a school of play, from which sprang such able pupils as H. P. Montgomery, P. P. Randolph, B. C. Tilghman, W. G. Thomas, Lewis Elkin, and others. These gentlemen beat New York in two correspondence chess matches. The Philadelphia Chess Club was founded under the most flattering auspices in 1859, at the southeast corner of Thirteenth and Chestnut sts.

In 1875 a second revival of local chess took place, the club occupying a handsome suite of rooms at 10 North Merrick street, and at this place the Fourth American Chess Congress was played. The best and final chapter of Philadelphia chess, however, took shape, when in October, 1885, under the title of Franklin Chess Club, a new organization was formed which gave a fresh impetus to the noble pastime.

All the great chess masters of the world—Steinitz, Zukertort, Lasker, Gunsberg, Mackenzie, Mason, Blackburne, Weiss, Walbrodt, etc.,— have played engagements at the club, and have met with creditable opposition. The interest of the season 1892 and 1893 was enhanced by the fact that two silver champion cups were presented to the club. The one presented by Mr. George W. Childs is open to annual competition of Philadelphia Chess players under the auspices of the club. The other, presented by Dr. Persifor Frazer, is open to club members only, and becomes the property of the player winning it three times.

GERMANTOWN CRICKET CLUB.

THE GERMANTOWN CRICKET CLUB.

CRICKET, like many other field sports, seems to flourish exceptionally in particular localities, and from the very inauguration of the game in its vicinity, Germantown became its favored and abiding home. To Germantown and its justly celebrated club belong the credit of having established the first purely native American team in the country.

It was in the summer of 1854 that from ten to twenty Germantown boys, who had been in the habit of playing cricket for perhaps two or three previous seasons, determined to effect a permanent organization, and found an American Cricket Club. In pursuance of this object they met and duly formed The Germantown Cricket Club, which from that day to the present has exerted so potent an influence in fostering and propagating the game, and the name of The Germantown Cricket Club is to-day probably as well known to the cricketing community as the Marylebone, of London. To start an interest that should be enduring and productive of tangible results was not done altogether without a struggle, and the young founders of the club had to face some difficult problems, an instance of which may be found in the fact that it required no little diplomacy at the early meetings of the club to induce the members to fix the initiation fee at the moderate sum of one dollar, with the payment of monthly dues of twelve and a half cents, so limited were their financial resources.

But the enthusiasm of the players found a strong and ardent encouragement in the patronage bestowed by the ladies, and owing in a great measure to their unstinted and devoted support, it was but a short time before the club had enrolled amongst its members those whose financial aid and assistance were so necessary to its development.

At the outset, the procurement of any proper place on which to play seemed almost hopeless, and for at least two years, the club practiced and even played on grounds that could not fail to provoke a smile at the present day. Nothing, however, would dampen the ardor of the members, ably seconded as it was by the presence and support of its patronesses.

One or two victories in the first year or two over older clubs served to stimulate the interest of its patrons and render its necessities more apparent to the powerful. Finally, in 1856, the club secured a ground on Duy's Lane, near the main street, and by the aid of liberal subscriptions, succeeded in having it graded and put in excellent condition, with the result that the course of a ball depended somewhat on the skill of the bowler and not as formerly, entirely on the conformation of the ground.

From this time for a series of years the condition of the club was prosperous in the extreme. The grounds which were favorably located, became on cricket days the centre to which flocked all the beauty and all the gaiety of Germantown and its vicinity, besides a very large percentage of those whose aid and assistance was so desirable.

One by one all the local clubs, of which a great number had arisen under the inspiriting example of The Germantown, succumbed to the prowess of the latter's eleven, and in 1857 the club attained the proud distinction of challenging and beating the full strength of The Philadelphia Club. It was on the presentation of the ball after the match (a ceremony that was never omitted in those days), that the captain of the victorious team, remarked in accepting it, "That justly elated as the eleven were in having won it from older and more experienced players, it would never rest until it had wrested a similar trophy from the strongest English eleven," a boast that, however extravagant it sounded at the time, seems, in view of the increased strength of the club, as now constituted, possible of being accomplished in the not very distant future.

A mistaken, but not wholly unaccountable policy on the part of the club, in its infancy, caused the formation of the only serious rival it ever had. It was made a rule of the club when organized, that no one should be eligible to membership under the age of fourteen. This unwise rule at once deprived the club of all the youthful talent that was so necessary to its successful maintenance, for there is perhaps no game in which the tyro displays in his earliest youth the form and style destined to make him the skillful player, as in the game of cricket.

Though the rule was subsequently rescinded, the error was committed, and the infant talent of Germantown, instead of being fostered by the parent club, was driven to form a club for itself, and resulted in the establishment of The Young America, a club that has counted on its first eleven some of the finest players that the cricket field has yet produced, and ultimately enabled it in more than one hotly contested game to claim the victory against the paternal club.

For six years the progress and success of the Germantown Club was uninterrupted, and the interest manifested in its welfare almost unprecedented : From 1861 until 1866, with nearly all of its first eleven at one time or another in actual service, besides a large number of its less active members similarly engaged, it is scarcely surprising that cricket should for a time have been relegated to a second place, even in the minds and hearts of its most enthusiastic admirers and devotees. At the close of the war, however, in 1866, it was speedily demonstrated that the spirit that animated the boys of 1854 far from being extinct, had only slumbered, and was ready at the first opportunity to reassert itself.

A meeting to restore the club to activity was called in July, 1866, and instantly met with the most enthusiastic and gratifying response from all its former followers and patrons, not excepting those who at first had been so instrumental in cherishing and advocating its interests, the ladies of Germantown and its neighborhood.

The opening of the grounds near Nicetown, which were procured through the influence and liberality of its present president, the most devoted, and the most enthusiastic of cricketers, and which formed a part of the country seat of H. Pratt McKean, Esq., to whose kindness in giving it the club was so greatly indebted, was made the occasion for the presentation of a handsome stand of colors by the ladies, through General George G. Meade, and it once more entered upon a course of prosperity and victory.

On those grounds, kept and maintained in perfect order and condition, and munificently endowed by its present president, has been played every International Cricket match (with the exception of the one in 1859 with George Parr's team), that has occurred in Philadelphia up to 1893.

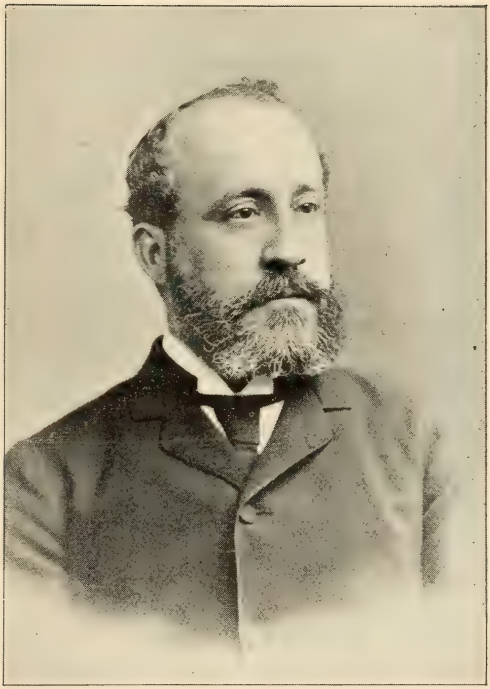

On those grounds, and in the presence of its numerous and ardent admirers, time and again has the Germantown Cricket Club seen its first eleven triumph over its competitors, and surely and steadily advance by manly play and courteous bearing to the front of the cricketing community.

The encroachments of the city in succeeding years at last compelled the seeking of another arena, and first gave rise to the suggestion of incorporating The Young America with The Germantown Club, and procuring a suitable ground on which the united strength of the consolidated clubs might play. This was finally accomplished in March, 1890, and resulted in the purchase, in the same year, of the grounds at Manheim, deservedly admitted by all foreign as well as native players to be the most beautiful and, perhaps, the finest cricket field in the world.

From 1890 to the present the club has continued to maintain its supremacy, not only by proficiency in the game itself, but in exerting a wide-spread and increasing influence upon the cricketing community.

Under the able administration of its president, assisted by his coadjutors, it takes its stand as the ardent advocate of every measure that can in anywise tend toward the improvement of cricket and making it one of our National games, and also in fostering with the utmost solicitude the youngest talent that may manifest itself in the rising generation, thereby repairing its early error and enabling it to perpetuate the skill that will entitle it to hold in the future the place it has fairly won in the past.

THE HAMILTON CLUB.

THE Hamilton Club was organized January 1, 1887, with thirty members. Since its foundation the association has prospered wonderfully, and now has a membership of about 130, among whom are many of the most prominent citizens of West Philadelphia. On October 18 of the same year a charter was procured. The club was formed purely as a whist club, and during its six years' existence has produced some players of national reputation.

In the fall of 1889, the ground occupied by the present club-house was purchased, and work was commenced upon the house of the club, on Forty-first, above Spruce street, and on January 1, 1890, the club took formal possession of its new headquarters. Besides whist, pool, billiards and other popular games are indulged in by members. A record has been kept of the number of games played and the score of every member since the organization of the club.

Matches at duplicate whist are frequently played by the most skillful exponents of the game with other clubs, and in a large majority of cases the Hamilton representatives have been victorious. The Hamilton club was among the first to become identified with the American Whist League, organized in Milwaukee in 1891, and has had delegates at each annual meeting since, and has furnished its first and succeeding vice-presidents. Dr. M. H. Forrest, a member of the club, has presented to the American Whist League, a trophy, known as the Hamilton Trophy, which is played for at the annual meetings of the body.

Sparkling "Londonderry."

WHAT CLUBS AND HOTELS USE IT.

Mr. J. Reed Whipple, proprietor of the famous "Young's" and "Parker's," synonyms of all there is in good hotel keeping, was seen by the Herald writer, just as he was finishing a bottle of "Londonderry." The conversation naturally drifted to mineral waters.

"From the time of introducing the 'Londonderry,'" said Mr. Whipple, "its sale has been one of constant increase. During the last year this increase was very marked, it being fully 100 per cent greater than for the twelve months previous."

"Was this shown in the sales at the dinner table?"

"Yes; my guests show a decided preference for it as a table water."

"How about the bar?"

"Here, too, the 'Londonderry' is in great favor. Two years back the common phrase was 'Whiskey and Polly;' now it is 'Whiskey and Londonderry.' I believe more people are now drinking the 'Londonderry' than all the other waters combined."

"What is your personal opinion of it?"

"I consider it one of the very best of table waters, and cannot say too much in its favor."

THE LAWYERS' CLUB.

ON July 9, 1892, the "Lawyers' Club, of Philadelphia," was incorporated with the following gentlemen as subscribers:

Hon. Edward M. Paxson,	Hon. William B. Mann,
Hon. George W. Biddle,	Mayer Sulzberger, Esq.,
Geo. Wharton Pepper, Esq.,	Samuel Gustine Thompson, Esq.,
Edward Shippen, Esq.,	Gavin W. Hart, Esq.,
Samuel M. Hyneman, Esq.,	Hon. F. Carroll Brewster,
Henry C. Terry, Esq.,	Hon. Thomas R. Elcock,
William Henry Lex, Esq.,	Henry T. Dechert, Esq.,
Josiah R. Adams, Esq.,	James N. Beck, Esq.,
Emanuel Furth, Esq.,	Silas W. Pettit, Esq.

The object of the club is "to encourage among its members social intercourse and a free discussion of matters affecting lawyers; elevating the standard of professional ethics; aiding in all improvements looking to the prompt and efficient administration of justice and the promotion of legislation for that purpose, and the maintenance of a club-house and library for the use of its members."

The eighth floor of the Betz building (when completed), at Broad and Penn Square, has been selected as the future home of the club, and will contain a library, reading, smoking, dining, assembly and billiard rooms and a café.

The members are divided into two classes, viz.: Resident and non-resident. Resident members are those residing and engaged in practice in the county of Philadelphia. Non-resident are those residing and engaged in practice outside the county of Philadelphia.

The admission fee for resident members has been fixed at $25; that for non-resident members at one-half the amount. The question of organizing a Lawyers' Club has been agitated for some years past, but nothing decisive was accomplished until last year, when the present subscribers, after considerable effort, succeeded in making the proposed club a success. Numerous meetings were held, and a vast amount of labor was necessary before the originators secured the hearty support and co-operation of their fellow members of the bar. The membership is now about 150, but the officers confidently anticipate an addition of at least 100 names to the secretary's list by the first of the year, as by that time the club will probably be ensconced in their permanent headquarters on the eighth floor of the Betz building. Without exception the officials of the club are men of prominence at the Philadelphia bar, and the election of Hon. F. Carroll Brewster to the presidency of the club has given universal satisfaction. Ex-Judge Brewster's election was unanimous, the incorporators thereby testifying their appreciation of their fellow-lawyer.

MANUFACTURERS' CLUB, 1409 WALNUT STREET.

THE MANUFACTURERS' CLUB.

IN 1885 the textile manufacturers formed what was known as "The Philadelphia Manufacturers' Association." It was organized for the purpose of protection against the unjust demands of the labor unions, and to arrange all difficulties between employers and employed as amicably as possible. This association was so successful that early in 1887 there seemed to be little need of it. Strikes and troubles of all kinds had almost entirely ceased in the textile industries, and a want of interest in the meetings by the members was becoming very apparent to the officers. Many plans were discussed for keeping the interest alive, but none seemed to meet with favor until Mr. Joseph P. Truitt, chairman of the Executive Committee, conceived the idea of forming a club, to be composed of manufacturers, without regard to any particular branch of industry, but to embrace all. A meeting was called on March 7, 1887, at which the following gentlemen were present: George D. Bromley, Joseph P. Truitt, Samuel Thornton, Charles H. Salmon, Robert Dornan, James Doak, Jr., John C. Watt and Wm. S. Stockton.

At this meeting it was resolved to form a club, to be composed of representative manufacturers, the object being to benefit the manufacturing interests in every way possible, and at the same time to provide a club house where meetings could be held, and where all the social features of a club could be enjoyed. This movement was very successful, and on the 19th of May, 1887, the club was chartered.

Temporary quarters were secured at the northwest corner of Juniper and Walnut streets, and a committee appointed to secure a site for a permanent house.

The entrance fee had been fixed at $50, and the annual dues at $40. The membership was limited to 500. This limit was reached during the first year, and was advanced to 750. This number was reached during the next six months, when the limit was advanced to 1000, and the entrance fee to $100, with the annual dues at $50, which is still in force.

The club purchased the property at No. 1409 Walnut street, having a frontage of 30 feet, and a depth of 96 feet. Upon this lot they built an elegant structure, under the supervision of Messrs. Hazlehurst & Huckle, architects, with Mr. Allen B. Rorke, as builder.

The floors average 15 feet in height, and the building measures from the pavement to cornice, 93 feet, and to the tower finial, 115 feet. The vault under the pavement is 16 feet in depth, and contains the two tubular boilers, 50 horse-power each; also the coal hopper in which coal is received, weighed and tested. Under the floor of the boiler room is the blow-off tank.

In the front portion of the basement is the engine room, in which is located a 75 horse-power engine, which is used in connection with the dynamo only, the latter having a capacity for 650 lights. The engine room proper is 16x28 feet, walls covered with glazed buff tile. In this room also is the pump for supplying the tank, which is also connected with the fire hose in various parts of the building. The thermostat is located here, and regulates the temperature of the entire building; also two Berryman heaters through which the exhaust of all pumps is carried, with a view of heating water for use throughout the entire building.

The boiler flue, 3 feet in diameter, built of brick and arched, is carried under the cellar floor from front to rear, a distance of 96 feet 6 inches, and connects with a vertical stack 105 feet high.

In the basement also will be found the pressure tanks, pumps, etc., which furnish power to two hydraulic elevators—one passenger and one freight. To the rear is a waiters' room, fitted with lockers and closets; also large storerooms, supplies being taken into these rooms by means of a hydraulic lift on the rear pavement. A sub-cellar, 20 feet square, is arranged for the storage of wine, etc.

The heating throughout is by means of indirect radiation, except in lavatories where direct radiation has been used. The various coils are attached to the cellar ceiling at the foot of every flue, and are supplied with fresh air drawn from the roof by means of a large 60-inch fan, the air being carried to the benches of radiation by means of galvanized iron ducts.

Entering the building from Walnut street, the first feature that strikes the eye is the wainscoting of the vestibules, paneled from floor to ceiling, and also the ceiling itself is laid off in patterns, while the floor is of Mosaic marble, laid in cement. After passing up two steps the hall is reached, also wainscoted, and from which the reception room, main stairs and ladies' restaurant are reached. The passenger elevator also starts from this point. The finish in this floor is cherry except the main staircase, which is oak. The reception room, facing Walnut street, is 17 feet 6 inches by 18 feet 6 inches, and contains a handsome stone mantel in French style.

Between the main stairs and rear rooms on each floor are located the lavatories, passenger and freight elevators, serving rooms, rear or servants' stairway, etc.

In the main hall of the second floor is a large open fireplace, designed in French gothic. To the front is the club parlor, 21x27 feet 8 inches, separated from main hall only by a series of handsomely-curtained arches. To the rear is the billiard room, 27 feet 8 inches by 43 feet, finished in sycamore. The novel design of gas fixtures and billiard racks is the special feature of this room, together with the enriched decoration of walls and ceiling.

To the front of the third floor is the library 21x27 feet 8 inches, finished handsomely in mahogany. The wall and ceiling decoration is especially unique in this room, and to the rear is the club assembly room, 27 feet 8 inches by 50 feet, with book and pamphlet shelves in butternut around the entire room. On the east side of this room is a large and very elaborate mantelpiece, somewhat similar design to those seen in many French chateaux.

In the Walnut street end of the fourth floor are located the private dining rooms, appropriately decorated and finished in hard wood, and in the Moravian street end is the card room, 28x38 feet, with especially-enriched walls and ceilings and handsome gas fixtures.

The lavatories throughout are finished in marble and tile, with the exposed metal work in nickel or silver, and all the fixtures of the most approved pattern. The sanitary department is perfect in every respect.

At the head of each flight of steps, as a floor is approached, a handsome mantel and fire-place is seen with mirrors inserted so as to reflect the delicate carvings of the stair balustrade.

The elevator car is also elaborately designed in conformity with the general style adopted, and is a new feature in Philadelphia club buildings.

The decorations throughout are elaborate and harmonious in their color-combination, and in a style never before carried out in this city.

The furniture and hangings are of the most elegant and complete kind, and present many novel features in club equipment.

In front of the fifth floor is the secretary's office, and adjoining it on the rear of the stairway are located the servants' stairs, kitchen and steward's room, serving room, china, glass and silver closets, etc., the kitchen being on the extreme rear of the building. In it are located a French range 12 feet in length, two boilers, four urns for coffee, tea, etc., dish heating apparatus, cooks' table, all connected with live steam pipe. There are three refrigerators, three sinks, etc. The floor of this room is asphaltum, thus making it water-tight.

The sixth floor or roof was originally enclosed with a parapet wall, provided with upright standards, over which an awning could be stretched, and so used in the summer time. It has since been roofed over and enclosed on all sides with glass, which makes a beautifully light and pleasant room for winter, and with sash up in summer time, it is as open as it was originally.

The club has three classes of membership, viz. :

Resident members, who must be manufacturers. The entrance fee for this class is $100, and the annual dues $50.

Non-resident members, who must reside at least fifty miles from Philadelphia, and be manufacturers. There is no entrance fee for this class, and their dues are $25.

Associate members, who must be identified with manufacturing interests, such as manufacturers' agents, etc. The entrance fee for this class is $100, and the annual dues $50.

The non-resident membership extends over a great part of the United States, seventeen (17) States being represented.

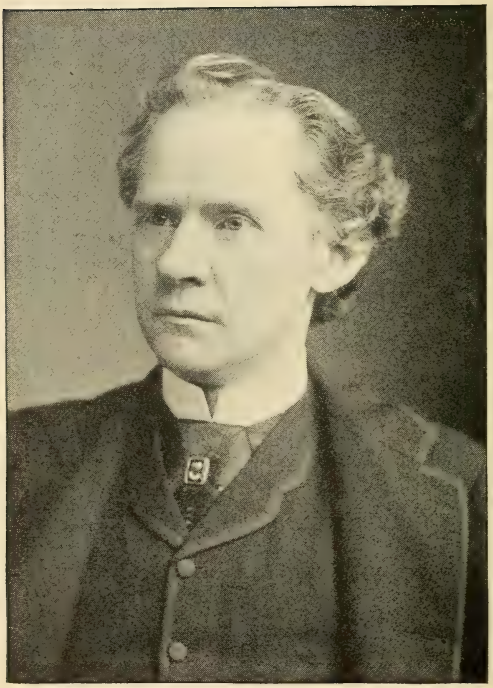

The club is divided into sections, such as Textile, Chemical, Shoe and Leather, Iron and Steel, Machinery and other sections. Most of these sections are very active, and have accomplished much good. The club has many business committees, which meet frequently and transact much important business. The Committee on Commerce and Transportation, Legislative Committee, Committee on Water Supply for Philadelphia, are all very active, and have been of incalculable benefit to manufacturers. The club is in every sense a business organization, and has wielded a vast influence in the commercial and political circles of this country in the interests of manufacturers.

This club has also all the social qualities that clubs generally have ; its cuisine has an enviable reputation, and many of the most prominent men of the country have been entertained beneath its roof.

The club publishes a weekly paper called The Manufacturer, which has a large circulation, and is widely quoted, not only in the United States, but in Europe, its vigorous and very able advocacy of the Protective Tariff policy having won for it a world-wide reputation.

MARKHAM CLUB, 1405 LOCUST STREET.

THE MARKHAM CLUB.

IN the spring of 1887, a group of fifteen or twenty young men, among whom a community of tastes and interest existed, associated themselves together as "The Keystone Club," and rented a room which soon became the headquarters for good fellowship and a certain semi-Bohemian sort of conviviality. So many others wished to join the circle that the room soon became overcrowded, and a few months later a small house was found requisite. In four years in this house, which was on Fifteenth street, above Walnut, the club increased in numbers and grew in standing and in its tone and aspirations to such an extent, that in the fall of 1891 the name was changed to "Markham" (in honor of Pennsylvania's sturdy and cheery first Governor), and the house, 1405 Locust street, was rented, in which the club still has its home. The decorousness of a club has succeeded to the untrammeled freedom of the founders, but there has survived a heartiness and lack of stiffness or formality, which forms one of its strongest attractions. This is probably due in part to the fact that the club is almost unique in the youthfulness of its members. It has always been essentially a "young man's club," and the young men of Philadelphia have recognized and appreciated the fact by applying in constantly increasing numbers for admission to membership. The result has been that the limit of one hundred and fifty has been almost constantly strained.

No Good Thing...

Can be had for Nothing;

but things of equal value are cheaper in some places than others - everything depends upon the conditions.

Life Insurance is worth all it costs only when the cost is controlled by intelligence, integrity and mutuality of interest, for then it costs least.

Look at one form of insurance:

If you pay $50 per year for 20 years, you will get $1,000 at the end of that time, meanwhile having your life insured. The insurance has therefore cost the interest on your premiums. Not a bad thing in the most unfavorable phase.

But suppose, what has been true time and again in the PENN MUTUAL, that your net payments averaged $37.50 per year, or a total of $750 in exchange for the $1,000 you receive. Here is insurance and interest, too!

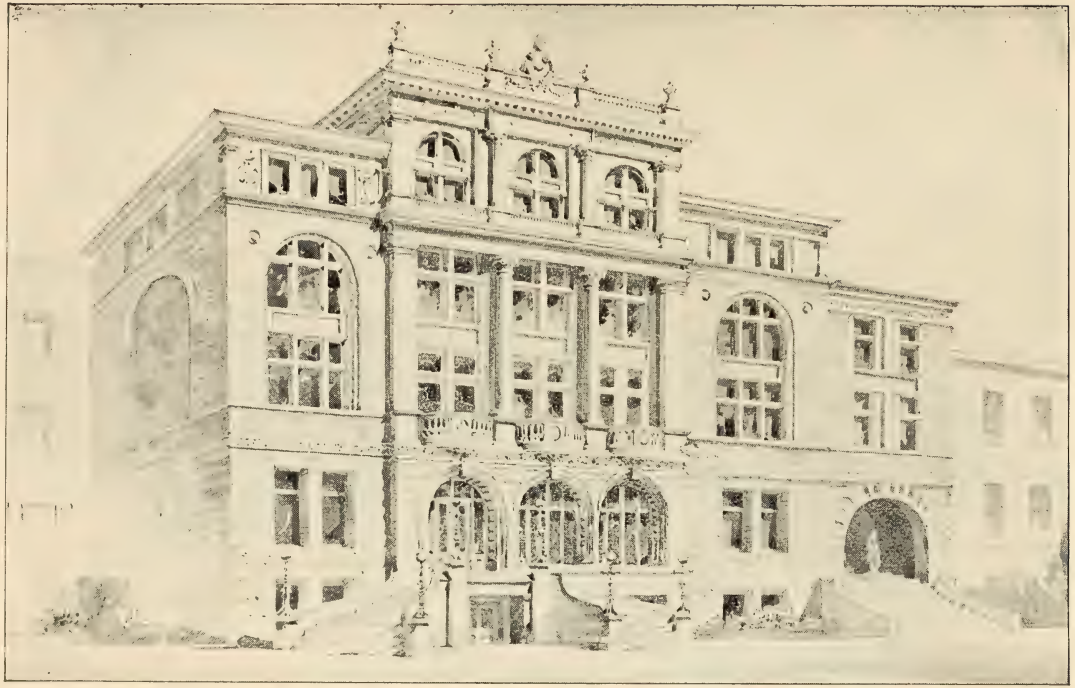

Suppose, again, you are indifferent whether you pay $37.50 or $50 per year, and choosing the latter, allow your over-payments to accumulate through the whole period. This would probably net you $1,658.

Better look the matter up. A company stands ready to gratify your curiosity and your needs—either or both.

MERION CRICKET CLUB.

THE MERION CRICKET CLUB.

THE Merion Cricket Club owes its introduction into the cricket world primarily to William W. Montgomery and Maskell Ewing, who, while on a pedestrian tour through the Blue Ridge Mountains in Berks County in the fall of 1865, conceived the idea of organizing a cricket club in the neighborhood of Lower Merion. Cricket was indigenous to the soil of Lower Merion, having been played at Haverford College, and at Dr. Lyons' school prior to this date.

The club was organized in October, 1865, by the following Philadelphians: William W. Montgomery, Maskell Ewing, G. H. Ball, Charles Eyre, Allen Evans, C. W. Humphreys, Rowland Evans, E. H. Eyre, E. S. Sayres, Jr., R. H. Reilly, H. Sayres, J. Aubrey Jones, E. H. Lycett, W. Stroud, M. Bailey. Two of the founders are dead, three hold official positions to-day, and nine are active members.

The first meeting was held at Glenays, the country seat of Richard R. Montgomery. At this meeting the object of the call was thoroughly explained, and committees appointed to solicit the co-operation of the residents of that section of the country. On April 1, 1866, a second meeting was held at the country seat of Dr. Jos. Anderson, at Ardmore. After a lengthy discussion it was resolved to call the new association the Merion Cricket Club.

The committees appointed to procure support for the club in the neighborhood made most gratifying reports, and it was determined to engage grounds at once. Through the liberality of J. Aubrey Jones, a plot of ground on his father's estate, at Wynnewood, was tendered to the club, and there in the following month, May, 1866, the Merion Club played its first match with the Haverford College team, in which the Merion Club was victorious. This victory gave a great impetus to the game, and although the accommodations were of the most meagre description, the membership gradually increased and plans were frequently discussed to devise means to raise sufficient money for a suitable club-house. At this period the club's cricket implements were kept in a wooden box, six by two feet, which through the courtesy of the school board of Lower Merion, the club was allowed to keep them in the entry way of the Wynnewood public school house.

The first president of the club was Charles Eyre, and the complete list of executives after him are as follows: John B. Thayer, Rowland Evans, Samuel M. Garrigues, J. Hunter Ewing, James Rawle, William W. Montgomery, Murray Rush and A. J. Cassatt.

The club occupied the old Wynnewood grounds until the summer of 1873, when it was decided to lease five acres of ground at Ardmore, which had been purchased with this object in view by Rowland Evans and W. W. Montgomery.

In 1880 it again became necessary to procure additional space for playing, and two and a half acres adjacent to the club's property were purchased, and in the same year a larger club-house was erected. The junior and ladies' houses were built in the spring of 1881.

For the last eleven years the Merion Club remained on their Ardmore grounds, and during that period the membership steadily increased, and to-day secretary Edward S. Sayres, who has been honored with re-election almost continually since the club was organized, announces that his books contain the names of over 1000 members of all classes. At the commencement of the year 1892, the officers of the Merion Cricket Club decided that it was absolutely necessary for the club to procure grounds and club-houses on a scale equal to any in this country.

Through the liberality and energy of many gentlemen and ladies, members of the club, an organization to purchase a cricket ground and lease it to the club for 999 years was formed.

This organization is known as the "Haverford Land and Improvement Company," which in the spring of last year purchased twelve and one half acres of valuable property at Haverford Station, on the Pennsylvania Railroad. To Allen Evans fell the responsibility of designing and clearing these twelve and a half acres to make them suitable for modern athletic purposes. Two great stone houses stood on what is now the cricket field. One was moved bodily and placed close to the other. Then the process of remodeling was commenced, and the transformation of two buildings, void of architectural lines and with hideous French roofs, into one vast colonial building effected. Besides this house, which is one of the most complete buildings of its kind in the country, there is a cricket house on the southern end of the grounds, for the use of the active members of the club. The total cost of the houses and grounds has been about $200,000, over half of which was raised by subscription.

In the fall of 1892 the club gave a luncheon at the new club-house to the Gentlemen of Ireland then visiting this country. The opening night of the new club-house, November 23, 1892, was a memorable event, and since that time there has been a succession of dinners, ladies' afternoon teas, with music; tennis tournaments, etc.

THE PEN AND PENCIL CLUB.

WHILE the old Journalists' Club was in its death throes, one of its evils—that of a rather promiscuous membership—was recognized by the newspaper men of the city, and this led to the formation of the Reporters' Club, which was merely an organization for the purposes of good fellowship. It held quarterly dinners, which were successful, but its membership was limited solely to reporters. These limitations were found to be too severe, and after four years of usefulness it died a peaceful death.

The newspaper men were then practically without home or organization until early in December of 1891.

In response to a call circulated among the newspaper offices, sixty-five men gathered in the reporters' room at the City Hall, on December 13, and there founded themselves together for the purpose of organizing a club. A constitution and by-laws were adopted, and at a subsequent meeting officers were elected.

The club was chartered by Judge M. Russell Thayer on February 13, 1892, and in a few weeks was comfortably, but not gorgeously, housed at 433 South Eleventh street, where it occupies the three stories above the first floor.

At the end of the first year the club had an active list of 175 members, beside a very limited number of associated members, who are persons in public life who are thrown in direct communication with newspaper men. This membership is limited to twenty-five, and all applicants for this class, as well as those for the active and non-resident lists are very closely scanned.

During the history of the club three distinguished members have fallen before the scythe of the grim reaper: Joseph E. Sinnott, a young and well-known man of decided literary ability; Edward Alden Miller, formerly city editor of the Record, and Daniel L. Dawson, the poet, whose verses have been received with special favor, and given the recognition in literary circles usually accorded the product of true poetic genius.

The club-house is peculiarly a home for working newspaper men—much more of a home than the profession enjoys in any other American city. It has half a score of rooms, and only one of them—the parlor—is furnished in the conventional oak and leather and velvet, which mean comfort and luxury to most clubs. The other rooms are adorned only with the trophies of many journalistic achievements of by-gone years, with the faces of Philadelphia newspaper men who identified themselves with the profession during two generations, with odd prints and pictures, guns and swords, and Samoan spears, and with a nondescript collection of bric-a-brac, which means more to the members than the greatest canvas to which Millet ever put his brush.

Incidentally there are tables and chairs. The library is well-stocked with books and current literature, and there is a room devoted to chess, checkers and cards. A pool table on the third floor has nearly as many regular patrons as the café, and there are in the house all the features which in the past have been developed to make club-life attractive.

It is what this club has outside of the general run which distinguishes it from anything else in the long and varied line of social organizations. It is Bohemian in that cheerful sense which comes to a family of friends. There is no line drawn by official position, politics or religion.

Once a week, or once a month, the club invites its friends to spend with its members "A night in Bohemia." The festivities are held in a large room on the top floor, which once was a gymnasium. Now it is papered in show-bill posters of loud hue, and from the ceiling hangs every kind of bric-a-brace which the members could find in their wanderings over the earth. There are musical instruments, black-jacks, hams, dynamite cartridges, bunches of garlic, skulls, daggers, foot-balls, brickbats—and everything else which an orderly housewife would discard at the first glance.

In this unique apartment, lit by the flickering rays of a dozen battered lanterns which hang from the smoke-begrimed rafters, the great men of Philadelphia have gathered time after time. The piano in one corner has been thumped by the fingers of famed composers, and the ugly walls have resounded to the tuneful songs of noted singers. Mighty pugilists have fought on the carpetless floor, and strong men have wrestled for honors there.

PHILADELPHIA CLUB, THIRTEENTH AND WALNUT STREETS.

THE PHILADELPHIA CLUB.

THE Philadelphia Club, which is the oldest social organization in the United States, was founded in 1834, its name at that time being the Delphia Club. In 1850 it was incorporated as the "Philadelphia Association and Reading Room," and nine years later its present title, the "Philadelphia Club," was adopted. The only original member living at the present time is H. Pratt McKean, who has been identified with the club for almost sixty years. From its foundation the club was composed of members of Philadelphia's leading families, and it was then, as now, the most exclusive social body in the Quaker city. The club has occupied their house at Thirteenth and Walnut streets for over forty years. While the exterior of the house presents an ancient appearance, the interior is of the most modern design.

The daily attendance averages about the same, year in and year out, as out of the 425 members there are a certain number of "regulars" who may be found at the club at the same hour every day. The affairs of the club are managed by a board of six directors and a president, who are elected annually. The board appoints a secretary and treasurer from among the directors. There is but one class of membership—active, the non-resident list having been dropped in May, 1885. The entrance fee is $100, and the dues are $80 per year. Among some of the oldest living members are Henry Carson, who joined in 1848; Richard Vaux, the president of the club, who has been an active member for forty-three years, and Bushrod W. Adams, who joined in 1851. The limit of membership is about reached—425, and it is possible that at the next annual meeting of the club it may be raised, as the applications are much greater than the deaths and resignations.

THE PHILADELPHIA COUNTRY CLUB.

THE PHILADELPHIA COUNTRY CLUB.

THE Philadelphia Country Club was incorporated in 1890 by the following gentlemen, all of whom are residents of the City of Philadelphia: John C. Bullitt, James Hay, Wayne MacVeagh, Charles E. Warburton, Edward T. Stotesbury, Eugene Delano and Theophilus P. Chandler. As stated in the articles of incorporation, the organization was formed for the purpose of maintaining a club for social enjoyment and the encouragement of driving, riding and athletic sports. There are three classes of membership: Resident, non-resident and army and navy. Resident members pay $50 annually, and non-residents half the amount. Army and navy men are admitted to the use of the club, in the manner provided for the election of members, upon paying the semi-annual subscription of resident member, which payment entitles the officer to the privileges of the club for six months. The entrance fee of a resident member is $100, and $50 for a non-resident. The ladies of the families of members are entitled to the use of the house and grounds. The grounds are situated adjacent to Bala, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and cover an area of about sixty acres. During the proper seasons polo is played on the polo ground, around which is a half-mile track, upon which races are run under the auspices of the club at various times. The cost of the sixty acres was $91,000. The club is the only one of its kind in Philadelphia or the surrounding suburbs, and at present has a membership of almost 400.

PHILADELPHIA CRICKET CLUB.

PHILADELPHIA CRICKET CLUB.

AS early as 1831 a few Englishmen played cricket in Philadelphia, and there are some old cricketers who can tell of the first lessons from the men who played at that time at Fairmount. But it seems to have been to Camden that the earliest Philadelphia cricketers went to play the game, at first on the Camden common, and later on a tract of land belonging to the Kuhn estate. In 1852, Hartman Kuhn, James B. England, William Rotch Wister, J. Dickinson Sergeant, Morton P. Henry, Thomas Hall and some others played at Camden, more or less regularly, and this was the beginning of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, the oldest cricket club in Philadelphia to-day. On February 10, 1854, they and many others held a meeting at the office of William Rotch Wister, 47 South Fifth street, and the club was organized; officers were elected, a constitution and by-laws were adopted, and a resolution adopted declaring who were the members of the club, and that all such should sign their names to the constitution. The birth of the Philadelphia Club was soon followed by that of the Germantown, the Olympian, the Delphian, the Keystone, and the Young America Clubs, and cricket took deep root in Philadelphia soil. From this time until the war began the Philadelphia Club grew and prospered, as a larger number of men each year were attracted to the game. During the years of the war but little cricket was played in and around Philadelphia, many of the active cricketers having enlisted for more sanguinary battles. But the war over, activities began again on the cricket fields, and the Philadelphia Club began a new life, still on the Camden ground. There it remained until 1872, when the evil that had threatened for some years fell upon it, the grounds were wanted for building improvements. Then began a long period of ten years when the club had no home exclusively its own. But in the same year, 1872, under a deed of trust they were given a joint use of the grounds at Nicetown with the Germantown Club, and there their battles were fought until in 1879 the partnership was dissolved, and the Philadelphia Club was homeless. Both the Young America and the Chestnut Hill Clubs, however, extended the privileges of their grounds to the wanderers, and the unity of the old club was preserved. This continued during three years, until early in 1882 an amalgamation was made with the Chestnut Hill Cricket Club under the old Philadelphia name and colors. Then again at Chestnut Hill the club had a home of its own. The infusion of younger activity by the Chestnut Hill contingent started the older club on a new life, and once again it became an active participant in the game it had done so much for. The ground at Chestnut Hill was soon seen to be too small, and the club's tenure of it too uncertain to make it desirable as a permanency, and on June 1, 1883, the club acquired for a long term of years the possession of its present ground at Wissahickon Heights. Here the club has an ideal cricket ground, measuring six hundred by five hundred and fifty feet. Work on it was begun at once. The whole place put under fence, a platform five hundred feet square of nearly a true level was made ; a large, well equipped stone club-house built ; also, a small one for ladies, and a large stand. The evil days seem to be over, and on October 1, 1884, the ground was opened for use, and the club found itself at last settled in a fashion that would have seemed impossible to those few lovers of the game who more than thirty years before had met to found the Philadelphia Cricket Club.

PHILADELPHIA GUN CLUB.

THE PHILADELPHIA GUN CLUB.

THE Philadelphia Gun Club is situated at Andalusia, Bucks County, Pa., eighteen miles from Philadelphia, within three hundred yards of the Delaware River. The club-house is solidly built of stone, and faces the river, and was the old Bickley mansion for many years, being at the present time about one hundred years old. The furniture of the club is in keeping with the place, while in the hall stand weapons of the olden time, flint-lock and arquebuse, and from the walls hang arms from India and the ruder weapons of Thibet. The club owns a number of boats, which are anchored at the boat-house on the river. In 1875, at Philadelphia, was organized the Holiday Shooting Club, for the shooting of pigeons on legal holidays at country places belonging to the members. Among members of this club were : General E. Burd Grubb, George Potts, Dr. Thomas Biddle, Alfred Biddle, L. Taylor Dickson, John King, A. J. Cassatt, John Tucker, Emlen Carpenter and Edward Rodgers.

In 1877 the name of the club was changed to the Philadelphia Gun Club. At present there are two yearly prizes for the highest aggregate scores made at the holiday shoots ; the short range for those shooting at twenty-six yards and under ; the long range for handicaps of twenty-seven yards and over, thirty-two yards being the greatest handicap. The four legal holidays, Washington's Birthday, Good Friday, Decoration Day and Thanksgiving are retained as the principal shooting days of the club.

The regular Saturday monthly shoots are those upon which the president's cup is shot for. This cup must be won three times for final possession.

In 1882 James B. Kinney was elected president of the club, and under his management the house was put in thorough repair, and the character of the club itself became more comprehensive, embracing many features of a country club. The membership is limited to 100, and the non-resident list to twenty-five.

Among the presidents of the club have been Edward Rodgers, James B. Kinney, General E. Burd Grubb, Clarence B. Moore and William R. White, the present executive.

PHILADELPHIA HORSE SHOW ASSOCIATION.

PHILADELPHIA HORSE SHOW ASSOCIATION.

THE Philadelphia Horse Show Association was organized during the spring of 1892 by a number of prominent gentlemen of Philadelphia, all of whom are owners of valuable horse-flesh, and take an active interest in advancing the standard of breeding and horses in general. On March 28, 1892, the charter was secured, and contains the following names as charter members: A. J. Cassatt, Rudulph Ellis, Clement A. Griscom, William L. Elkins, P. A. B. Widener, Theodore C. Patterson and R. M. Cadwalader. The objects of the association are as follows:

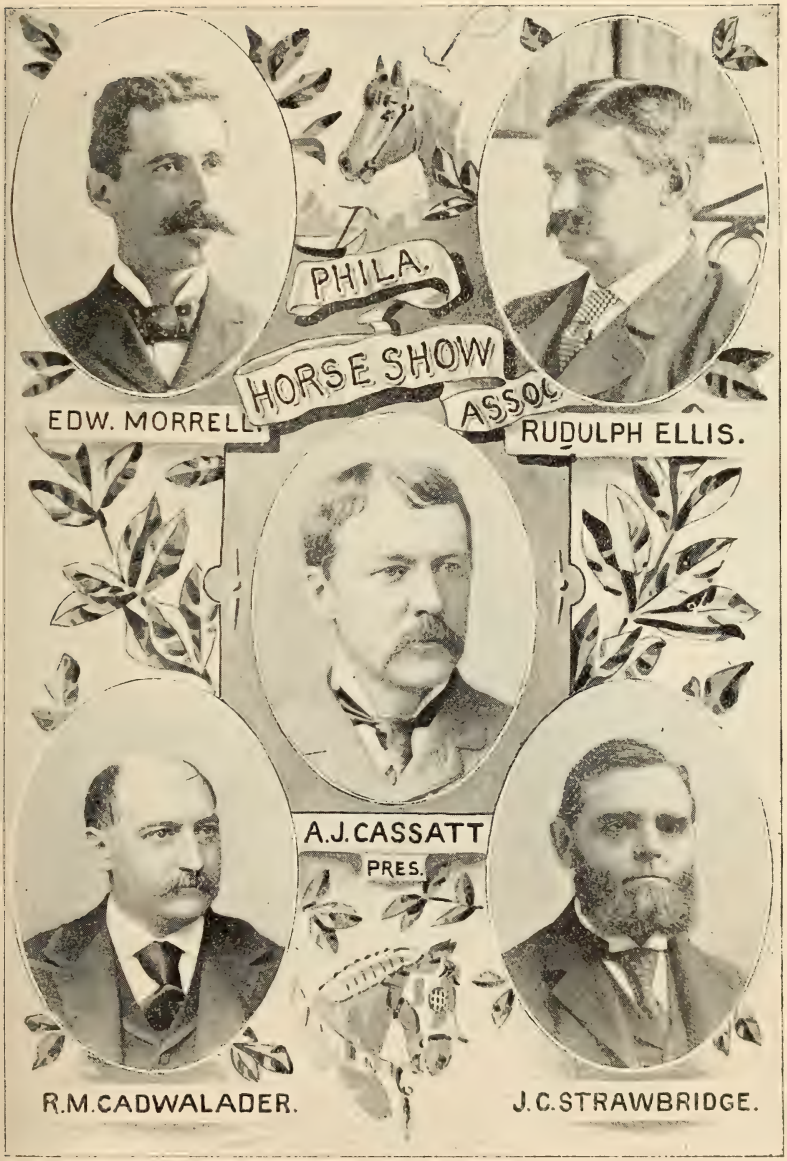

I. Maintaining a private park and facilities for exhibiting horses in trotting and other gaits, and for other innocent or athletic sports, including a club for such purposes.

II. To hold horse shows annually or oftener.

III. To improve the breed of all classes of horses and encourage animal industry.

IV. To disseminate knowledge as to horses and their habits, so as to instruct people in the safe and profitable uses and management of horses.

The show grounds of the association are situated at Wissahickon Heights, near Chestnut Hill, on the P. R. R., directly in front of Wissahickon Inn. Upon these are the grand-stand; stables, capable of accommodating about 500 horses; carriage houses and the exhibition ring. The first show was held on May 30 and 31, June 1 and 2, 1892, and was a gratifying success. This year the second annual show was held on the same dates, and was as great a success. The idea of an open air show originated in Philadelphia, and the success of the venture was due primarily to the indefatigable labors of Theodore C. Patterson and Charles A. Newhall. About $15,000 are given each year in premiums.

CAFE OF THE TURF CLUB.

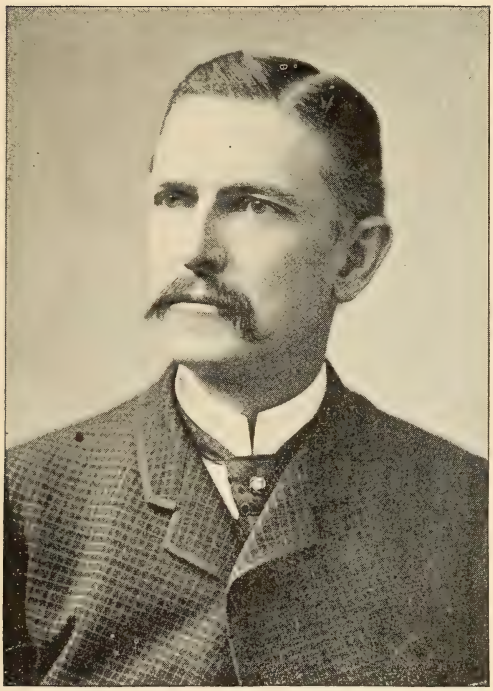

THE PHILADELPHIA TURF CLUB.

DURING the latter part of the year 1891 the Philadelphia Turf Club was organized by a number of well-known business men, who were also ardent horsemen. The club occupies the upper floors of the building on Broad street, next but one to Chestnut street, and its spacious apartments are furnished luxuriantly.

On February 13, 1892, the club was incorporated, and about the same time its headquarters were formally opened. There are three classes of membership: Life, honorary and active. The admission fee for life members is $250, such membership being limited to thirty. Active members are taxed an initiation fee of $50, and $25 annual dues.

The club's affairs are managed by a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and eleven directors, all of whom are elected by the club at the annual meeting on the second Tuesday of January of each year. The secretary and treasurer, whose duties are discharged by one person, shall be annually chosen by the directors.

One-fifth of all admission fees and dues received after the first of July, 1892, are invested by the Board of Directors as a sinking fund, and are held exclusively for the accumulation of a fund for the purpose of refurnishing the club-rooms, should current receipts be inadequate, or for the purchase of a club-house. It is the intention of the club, at no late day, to build a country house for the convenience of members who are frequent drivers, and it is proposed to make the house a model of its kind. As yet no steps have been taken to procure a site, but it is likely that one will be found somewhere near Fairmount Park, and of easy access to the city. The present list of life members includes the founders of the club.

THE RACQUET CLUB, 923 WALNUT STREET.

THE RACQUET CLUB.

ON October 26, 1889, the Racquet Club was incorporated, and since that period has risen to the front rank in clubdom. The club has a membership of about 200, and was originally composed of a small set of prominent athletes of this city, whose headquarters were at 923 Carpenter street. During the summer of 1889, the club decided to procure more commodious quarters, and the present house of the organization, on Walnut, below Tenth street, was secured. Following are the founders of the Racquet Club:

L. A. Biddle,	Edward S. Handy,
D. Murray Bohlen,	Lindley Johnson,
A. Sidney Carpenter,	Sutherland Law,
Henry R. Cartwright,	Henry G. Michener,
Joseph S. Clark,	Robert P. Perkins,
Alfred G. Clay,	James Potter,
Richard W. Clay,	C. P. Sinnickson,
Edward E. Denniston,	John B. Thayer, Jr.,
A. J. D. Dixon,	Lawrence Townsend,
James W. Fassitt,	Alexander Van Rensselaer,
Joseph M. Fox,	William Welsh, Jr.

The object of the club is the maintaining of Racquet Courts, and facilities for playing the games of racquets, hand-ball and other like athletic sports, and for gymnastic exercise. The management of the club is vested in a Board of Governors, consisting of sixteen members, the president, vice-president, treasurer, secretary and twelve members of the club. There are two classes of membership: Resident and non-resident—the former class being charged an initiation fee of $50, while the non-residents are exempt from same. Resident members pay annual dues of $30, and non-resident $10. The president annually appoints a House Committee of the board, consisting of the secretary, treasurer and four other governors, who have charge of the management of the club-house and such other matters as are referred to them by the board, but are at all times subject to the direction of the board. The club-house is supplied with all the modern improvements, and also contains one of the best appointed grill rooms in clubdom. As a social organization the club stands at the top, and during the season various entertainments are given. Among the members may be found some of the most expert racquet players in the country.

RADNOR HUNT.

THE RADNOR HUNT.

THE Radnor Hunt was the outgrowth of a riding club formed by gentlemen residing in the vicinity of Bryn Mawr during a part of each year. Among the organizers were : James Rawle, J. S. Waln, Cooper Smith, H. J. Lycett, H. B. Montgomery, Charles E. Mather, A. J. Cassatt, Clement A. Griscom, E. H. McCullough, A. R. Montgomery, H. Laussat Geyelin, Murray Rush, J. D. Windsor, H. M. Sill.

At a meeting held at Whitehall on March 13, 1883, an organization was effected, and the hunt undertook the hunting of a country regularly hunted for more than a century by farmers owning hounds in Radnor Township. The charter was secured August 13, 1886. One of the oldest of the packs of native fox hounds was secured, and the first meets were held at the old Mather farm, in Radnor, and the elections of members were frequently held in the saddle before the hunt.

Through the energy of President Rawle, a property was purchased on the Darby Creek, and the hunt then became a place of resort the entire year. Charles E. Mather, the present master was elected in 1887, when new kennels were built, and the pack largely increased. In 1890 the first reverses came in the destruction of the pack by rabies, and in the following year thirty-two couples of hounds were imported from the celebrated Belvoir Kennels.

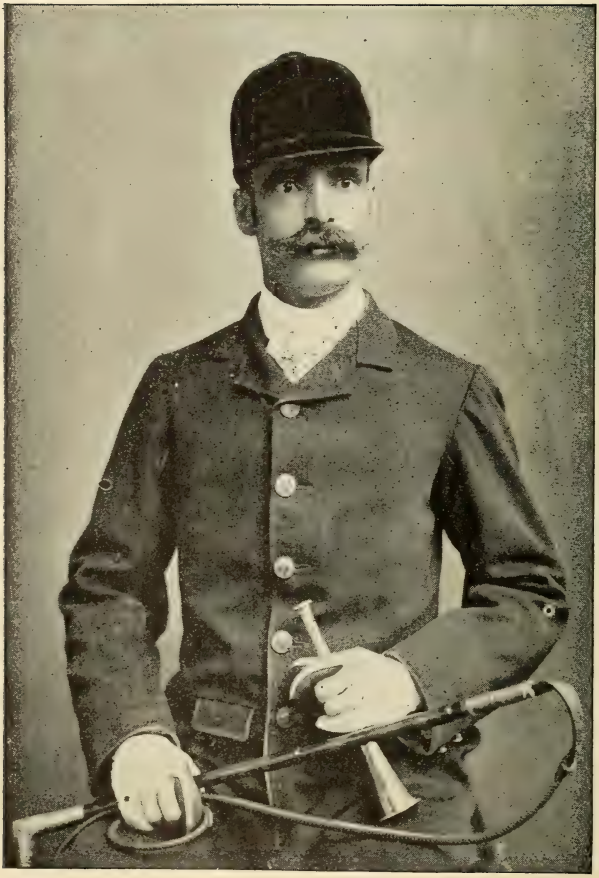

There are no such beautiful hounds, men say, in England, certainly none of such pure and direct pedigree.—BEAUFORT.

Their beautiful uniformity of coloring, their high class, and their wonderful evenness in appearance are quite unapproached elsewhere —BROOKSFY.

The kennels were again enlarged and kennel discipline introduced similar to the best establishments in England. Great attention has been given to breeding, and the kennel list now shows fifty couples of hounds unequaled in America.

In the stables are found hunters of the best class for the huntsmen and whippers-in. The Radnor country being well wooded, foxes are numerous, and the sport furnished cannot elsewhere be found in such close proximity to a large city.

RITTENHOUSE CLUB, 1811 WALNUT STREET.

THE RITTENHOUSE CLUB.

THIS prominent social organization was founded on February 19, 1875, in pursuance of a call signed by the following Philadelphians: Henry C. Gibson, Edward S. Clarke, S. Weir Mitchell, Charles Platt, Stephen A. Caldwell, William P. Pepper, A. D. Jessup, Caspar Wistar, Samuel Wagner, Jr., Henry Ashhurst, Theodore Cuyler, and Francis W. Lewis.

The first stated meeting of the club was held on April 12, and the original charter was recorded on June 19, 1875. The name of the club was formerly the "Social Art Club," but was changed to its present title at the annual meeting on March 19, 1888. From the foundation of the club until 1878, its headquarters were at 1525 Chestnut street, when it procured the house at 1811 Walnut street. In 1890 the adjoining property, 1813 Walnut street, was purchased, and the two buildings thrown into one. The club is one of the most exclusive in Philadelphia.

The presidents of the club from its foundation until the present time were: Theodore Cuyler, Caspar Wistar, George S. Pepper and Craig Biddle, who was elected in 1891. One of the most important features of the Rittenhouse Club is the library. There are three classes of members: Resident, non-resident and army and navy. The number of resident members shall not exceed 500. Non-resident members must reside at least forty miles from Philadelphia. Any officer of the army or navy of the United States, in active service, may be admitted to its privileges upon his paying the semi-annual subscription of a resident member. A newly elected resident member is taxed an initiation fee of $150, while $75 is charged a non-resident. The annual subscription is $70 for residents and army and navy members, and $35 for non-residents.

READING ROOM, SIGMA KAI ALPHA SOCIETY.

THE SIGMA KAI ALPHA SOCIETY.

EARLY in October, 1892, a number of young West Philadelphia men met together to organize a society, whose primary object would be the encouragement of manly, temperate habits. The first stated meeting was held October 14, when a Constitution and By-Laws were adopted. In accordance with these, all active members must be over sixteen years of age and under twenty-one, but adults become honorary members by paying a certain sum into the treasury.

Every candidate after election to active membership must agree to abstain from all intoxicating drinks until he is twenty-one years of age, or, while he is a member of the society. When an active member reaches manhood, he may become an honorary member, whereupon his total abstinence agreement ceases, but he is expected to exercise temperate habits, and to act in moderation in all pleasures.

The society is governed by the Executive Committee, which is composed of eight members, five active and three honorary, three-fourths of the committee being required to make a quorum to transact any business. By this arrangement no action can be taken without the sanction of at least one honorary member.

The president of the society must be an honorary member, while all other offices are held by the active members.

Regular meetings are held on the first and third Fridays of each month, when prominent, professional and business men are invited to address the members on interesting subjects, the second and last Fridays being devoted to debates and discussions on current topics.

The initiation fee and dues are kept at a nominal sum in order to make the membership accessible to young men of limited income.

THE PHILADELPHIA SKETCH CLUB.

ON Tuesday, November 20, 1860, a few young art students met at the studio of the late George F. Bensell, 125 South Eleventh street, this city, for the purpose of organizing a Sketch Club "for promoting the art of sketching amongst themselves." Those present, and also the founders of the club were: George F. Bensell, Edmund B. Bensell, Henry C. Bispham, Edward McIlhenny, John L. Gihon and Robert Wylie, all of whom are now dead, with the exception of Edmund B. Bensell. The founders were all students of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

Professional artists are admitted to membership, providing, of course, they are of good standing in the community, but amateurs in order to become eligible, must first have an original production "passed" by the proper committee. In December, 1880, a Relief Fund was instituted, its object being the relief of members in case of sickness or death, if necessary, and the fund has been called on but once since its organization. Members are taxed one dollar a year for the Relief Fund, and a contribution of $25 relieves the contributor from any further assessment.

The first president of the club was George F. Bensell, and the present executive is William Moylan Lansdale, who joined the club on December 29, 1864, and was also the first historian of the club, when the office was created in December, 1885. The annual dues are but $10. The club has occupied the following locations since its foundation: 125 South Eleventh street, 1323 Chestnut street, 1336 Chestnut street, 922 Chestnut street, 209 South Sixth street, 524 Walnut street, 10 North Merrick street, 1328 Chestnut street, and 201 South Eleventh street its present quarters. Meetings are held monthly.

Be Your Own Executor.

Instead of leaving money to be invested after your death, and possibly lost through bad investments, you can have it invested at 3½ per cent compound interest, payable in annual instalments to whomsoever you name, for a period of 20, 25 or 30 years, by which a guaranteed income of $1000 per year may be obtained for an annual outlay of $500, and your life insured in the meantime. The rates are low. No Trust Company will do this for you.

Actual settlements of Matured Policies issued only through this Office, 20 years ago, show a return of all premiums paid, with interest.

For figures at your age, apply to the old-established office of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, Drexel Building.

THE SONS OF DELAWARE.

THIS unique and thoroughly successful society was organized at a public meeting held for the purpose on the evening of January 27, 1892. by Delaware people resident in Philadelphia. A charter was duly obtained on April 9, 1892, and on May 1 following, the present headquarters were opened at the old Bayard Mansion, No. 1026 Walnut street. Its purposes are as follows :

1. To promote social intercourse among Delawareans by birth or ancestry residing or located in the State of Pennsylvania and adjacent territory.

2. To tender hospitality and manifest friendship toward Delawareans when they may be temporarily sojourning in the city of Philadelphia.

3. To collect, preserve and disseminate information concerning the history, folk-lore and conditions of the people and relating to the institutions of the State of Delaware.

For active membership the applicant must be above the age of twenty-one years ; he must have been born in Delaware, or he must be of Delaware ancestry, or have such other qualifications as the Board of Governors shall deem within the scope and purpose of the organization.

Honorary membership consists of such persons as the organization at its annual meetings shall desire to honor by reason of some deserved distinction concerning the State of Delaware or the purposes of the organization.

At the first, and thus far only annual meeting, which was held December 7, 1892, the following honorary members were elected : Hon. Samuel W. Pennypacker, Judge, Philadelphia ; Hon. George Gray, U. S. Senator from Delaware ; Rev. Charles W. Buoy, Philadelphia ; Hon. Joseph M. Carey, U. S. Senator from Wyoming ; Rev. Jonathan S. Willis, Delaware ; Talcott Williams, Esq., Philadelphia.

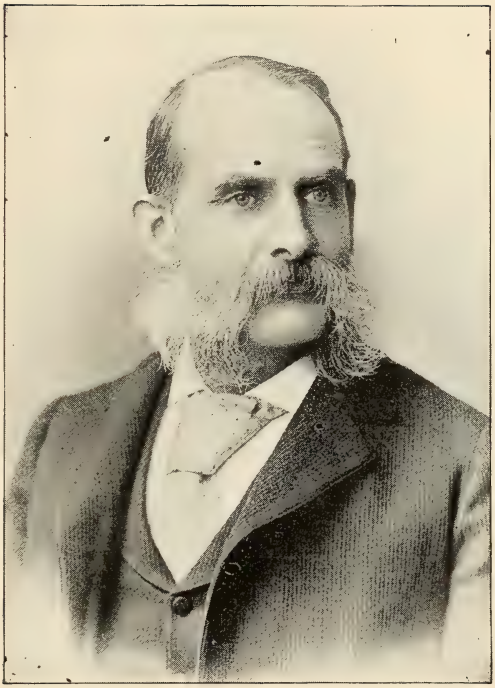

This meeting was held at the Continental Hotel, and at the banquet—which was the principal feature of the evening—one hundred and twenty gentlemen were present.

The organization has grown rapidly, and includes among its members leaders in all the professions and business lines in Philadelphia. Successful effort is made to maintain the characteristic simplicity and high morality of Delaware life in all entertainments, and in the entire management of "headquarters." The word "club" is not a recognized appellation of the organization, and the house is known as "headquarters." No liquors are permitted, and no game for stakes allowed. There is an Art Committee, which has done much to secure adornment as well as valuable historical pictures and manuscripts. There is also an Entertainment Committee, which provides frequent literary and musical treats of a high order.

The members wear a small gold badge, forming the coat-of-arms of Delaware, which is an exquisite work of art.

CASTLE OF STATE IN SCHUYLKILL.

STATE IN SCHUYLKILL.

THE "Schuylkill Fishing Company" was organized in the year 1732 as "The Colony in the Schuylkill." Its members, in 1748, built their first Court House near the city of Philadelphia, on the west side of the Schuylkill River, where the Girard avenue bridge now crosses. The place then was a wilderness, its denizens the fowls of the air, and the fish which, in quantities almost incredible, filled the river.

In 1781 "The Colony in Schuylkill" became the "State in Schuylkill."

In 1812 they built a second house which, after nearly a century of use, is still their habitation.

The passage of the fish to their castle having, in 1822, been obstructed by the building of the dam at Fairmount, they took this building apart and conveyed it down the stream to the vicinity of Rambo's Rock, on the east side or left of river near Gray's Ferry, where it was again erected.

Their old castle is the most ancient relic, in wood, our city possesses, and most precious in its associations.

Their state is the oldest social organization speaking the English language. Its members have, generation after generation, fished in the waters of our city's streams. They have all these long years of the growth in wealth and luxury of our nation preserved the same fare—the fish caught by their hands and served by themselves; each one serving the other in the most primitive ways of our earlier democracy and christianity. They have shared their hospitable fare with the most illustrious men of this and other nations for one, and over a half of another century.

The Commissioners of Fairmount Park, in 1876, granted the company a license to occupy the ground at the junction of Wissahickon Creek and the Schuylkill River, which is known as the "Colony of State in Schuylkill."

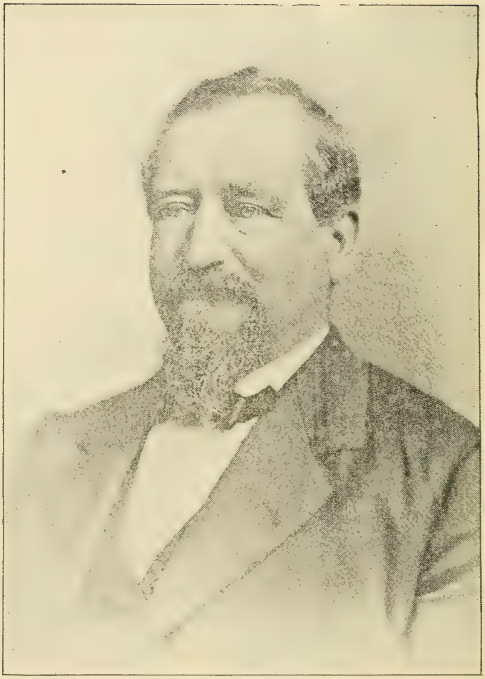

In November, 1887, the castle was taken apart and moved from Rambo's Rock to the property then acquired by the "State" on the Delaware River, between Andalusia and Dunk's Ferry.

Many of the original members were emigrants with Penn who settled in Philadelphia. "The Schuylkill Fishing Company of State in Schuylkill" is the present adopted charter name.

The governors of the "State" since its foundation have been as follows: Thomas Stretch, Samuel Morris, Jr., Robert Wharton, Thomas Morris, William Wharton Fisher, William H. Hart, William V. Anderson, William Harmer, Robert Adams, William Stevenson, Robert Adams, Samuel B. Thomas, William Camac, Samuel J. Christian and John Wagner, the present governor.

The founders of the "State" were: Thomas Stretch, Enoch Flower, Charles Jones, Joseph Stiles, Isaac Snowden, Joseph Saunders, William Hopkins, Isaac Stretch, Thomas Tilbury, Hugh Roberts, Philip Syng, James Coultas, Joseph Wharton, Joseph Stretch, Caleb Cash, Samuel Neave, William Plumstead, Cadwalader Evans, Daniel Williams, James Logan, William Parr, Abraham Mitchell, Samuel Burge, William Warner, Peter Reeve, William Ball and Luke Morris.

The membership is limited to thirty.

THE STYLUS CLUB.

IN October, 1877, this well-known organization was formed, the original members being Robert A. Welsh, Albert W. Frick, A. J. McCleary, James M. Ferguson, Thomas J. Lindsay, T. Horace Sharp, William H. Smith, Edward J. Swartz, S. C. Collins, William F. McCully, Herman Dieck, Hugh A. Mullen, James McConnell, Stephen N. Winslow, Louis N. Megargee and William B. Kinsey. Candidates for membership must be gentlemen engaged as editors, reporters, contributors to, or publishers of, newspapers; publishers of, or contributors to magazines, or correspondents of newspapers or magazines, resident in the city of Philadelphia. The active membership is limited to twenty-five.

The annual meeting and election are held on the last Tuesday of October. The dues of active members are $10 a year, and of non-resident, but one-tenth this amount. The entrance fee for active members is $10.

The Stylus Club is famous for its banquets, and in this respect rivals the Clover Club. Quarterly meetings are held, on the second Tuesday of March, June, September and December, at the close of which a banquet is given by the members. After the annual meeting an elaborate collation is held. Upon these festive occasions many guests are entertained, and since its organization the club has been honored with the presence of men of national and international reputation. The officers of the club consist of a president, first and second vice-presidents, and secretary, who also acts as treasurer.

THE "RABBIT."

THE RABBIT.

"THE Rabbit" is a social organization which was formed for the purpose of encouraging riding and driving among the members by the maintenance of a country resort for meetings and athletic sports. It was organized in 1861, and incorporated on July 2, 1877. The subscribers to the charter were the following: J. Lapsley Wilson, Charles R. Colwell, Stephen B. Fotterall, A. J. Cassatt, M. Edward Rogers, Edward Roberts, Jr., Henry B. Tatham, A. Loudon Snowden and Lewis Waln Smith.

The Rabbit suffered a great loss by the death of Samuel Welsh in May last. Mr. Welsh had been the president of the organization for a number of years, and it was largely due to his efforts that the club became a permanent success.

The affairs of the club are managed by a board of six governors and a president, who are elected annually in April. The yearly dues of a member are $20, and an initiation fee of $100 is charged. Stated dinners are given at the club house on alternate Saturdays, commencing on the second Saturday in October and ending with the last alternate Saturday in May. The limit of members is 100, and has been reached, with the same number awaiting admission. The house of the club is situated in Fairmount Park, and during the proper seasons numerous driving and riding parties are entertained by the members.

UNION LEAGUE, BROAD AND SANSOM STREETS.

THE UNION LEAGUE CLUB.

IN November, 1862, the Union League was originally organized as the Union Club, at the residence of the late Benjamin Gerhard, 226 South Fourth street, with twenty-four members. It was formed by a body of men loyal to the North, for the purpose of upholding and supporting the Union cause. The condition of membership required "unqualified loyalty to the Government of the United States, and unwavering support of its measures for the suppression of the Rebellion." Among the original members were: Judge J. I. Clark Hare, George H. Boker, Charles Gibbons, Benjamin Gerhard, Horace Binney, Morton McMichael, J. B. Lippincott, John Russell Young, George Parson Lathrop and others. Seven weeks after its foundation the name of the club was changed to the Union League. The first home of the League was at 1118 Chestnut street, the Old Hartmann Kuhn property. This house was secured in February, 1863. The charter was received and adopted May 22, 1864. At this time the League was compelled to secure new quarters, and the house at 1210 Chestnut street was rented temporarily, until its present building at Broad and Sansom streets was completed. This was formally opened on May 11, 1865. Among the distinguished men who have occupied the presidency of the Union League are William M. Meredith, J. Gillingham Fell, Horace Binney, Jr., Morton McMichael, John P. Verree, Charles E. Smith, George H. Boker, William C. Houston, Edwin N. Benson, Edwin H. Fitler and John Russell Young. The present membership is 1500, and as that is the limit, there is a large waiting list.

UNION REPUBLICAN CLUB, ELEVENTH AND CHESTNUT STREETS.

THE UNION REPUBLICAN CLUB.

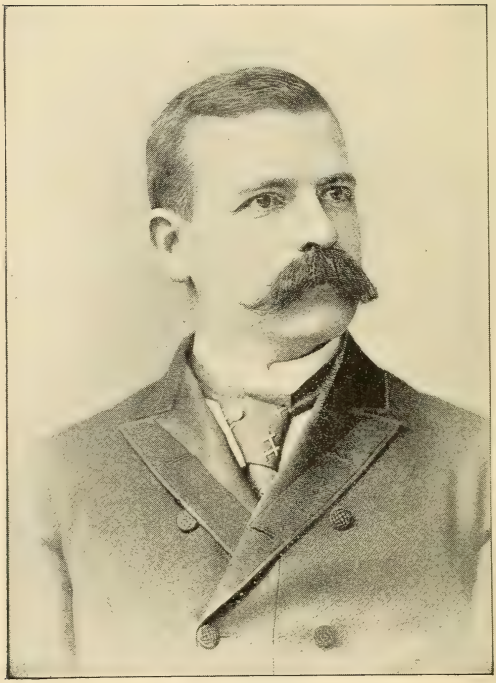

THE Union Republican Club was incorporated on October 14, 1878, by the following Philadelphians: John E. Addicks, M. Hall Stanton, H. C. Selby, James M. Kerns and John McCullough. Since its foundation the club has been prominently identified with all local, State and national Republican conventions of any magnitude. Many of its members have occupied public positions of trust and importance, and some have been honored with appointments from Washington. In its present flourishing condition the club ranks with any similar organization in the country. Among its members are the leading lights of local Republicanism.

For a few years prior to 1892 the club was somewhat disturbed by internal dissensions, and there were some fears of its sinking into oblivion. It is probable that such would have been the fate of the club, had it not been for the energy displayed by A. S. L. Shields, Theodore B. Stulb, Charles R. Graham and others in the reorganization of the club, which was effected in November, 1892. The reorganization was thorough, the membership list being relieved of all objectionable names, and plans made for the refurnishing of the club's headquarters at Eleventh and Chestnut streets. The second and third floors were put in the charge of decorators, and after their work was completed, the rooms were handsomely furnished. On April 14 of this year the apartments were formally opened, and upon this occasion the house was visited by over two thousand persons, including many men of national reputation.

The main reception room of the club is without doubt the most luxurious apartment of any club in the city.

The other rooms are fitted up on a corresponding scale of luxury.

The officers of the club consist of a president, two vice-presidents, a recording and financial secretary, treasurer and fifteen directors, all of whom are elected at the annual meeting, which is held on the second Wednesday of November. The entrance fee is $25, and the dues $24 a year for resident members, while non-resident members are charged an initiation fee of $10, and are exempt from dues.

A. S. L. SHIELDS,
PRESIDENT OF THE UNION REPUBLICAN CLUB.

UNIVERSITY CLUB, WALNUT STREET, BELOW BROAD.

UNIVERSITY CLUB.

THE University Club is the indirect outgrowth of an effort made before and during the Centennial to bring together graduates from all universities in an association for the discussion of university subjects and social intercourse amongst university men.

Nothing definite was done until December 16, 1880, when the Alumni Association of the University of Pennsylvania appointed a committee to investigate the feasibility of establishing a University Club. This committee consisted of John Neill, chairman ; John C. Sims, John Rodman Paul, Henry Budd and Effingham B. Morris, and they associated with themselves G. C. Purves, of Yale, Henry H. Brown, of Harvard, Josiah R. Adams, of Princeton, and William A. Platt, of Trinity. This joint committee brought the subject before a meeting of representative men of this city, held March 2, 1881, at which it was decided to form such a club. On July 8, 1881, the corporators resolved themselves into the "University Club of Philadelphia." The corporators numbered three hundred and fifteen men representing all the professions and many universities.

The success of the club was instantaneous, and it soon outgrew the dwelling house used as a club-house. The location, Walnut street near Broad, was so satisfactory, however, that it purchased the property and erected upon it a building of its own, which was opened to the members, April 2, 1888.

The club's presidents have been the revered Bishop Stevens, Samuel C. Perkins, S. S. Hollingsworth and John Cadwalader. Its list of vice-presidents and other officers and boards of governors have included the names of Philadelphia's most illustrious citizens.

WAYNE COUNTRY CLUB, WAYNE STATION, P. R. R.

THE WAYNE COUNTRY CLUB.

UNDER the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, The Wayne Country Club was incorporated in October, 1888, as the Merryvale Athletic Association. This was changed to the present name by a vote of the club in April, 1892, the change being legalized by the courts shortly after. The incorporators were: David P. Brown, Lee K. Burket, John H. Cook, Samuel S. Ellis, Joseph C. Egbert, M. D., Joseph M. Fronefield, Jr., Christopher Fallon, Theodore Gugert, William D. Hughs, George Kendrick, Robert M. McWade, James C. Pinkerton, Henry Pleasants, Jr., Charles M. Rhodes, Charles J. Rainear, Frank Smith, Robert Smith, John P. Wood, T. Stewart Wood and Arthur M. Ware.

The success of the association was assured from the start, nearly all the citizens of the town, then in its infancy, enrolling themselves as members. The rapid growth of Wayne beginning at this time, the increasing population added largely to the club's membership.

The first meetings were held in the old Wayne Hall, the adjoining ground being used for field sports. The great interest manifested soon made new and more attractive quarters necessary, and arrangements were made with the Wayne estate for building and leasing a club-house on ground best adapted for field sports, the building to include gymnasium, reading, meeting and billiard rooms. The site selected was a tract of ground along the Pennsylvania Railroad, in close proximity to Wayne Station, and containing four acres. A pretty club-house was soon erected and fitted up in an attractive manner, the meeting and reading rooms particularly being tastily finished in oak, with a large fire-place in one corner, the mantel-top being cut from a heavy oaken beam, with the motto of the club, "Mens Sana in Corpore Sano" carved upon its face.

This building had been in use but about two years when the growing popularity of the club made additional facilities necessary. A fine bowling alley and larger gymnasium space were added to the building at considerable cost, and three acres more of ground leased and improved, several tennis courts added, the grounds fenced in, and entrance gates of rustic work erected.

The field sports indulged in by the members are cricket, tennis and base-ball. Billiard and pool, bowling and tennis tournaments are of frequent occurrence, while on general holidays special programs are prepared for running, jumping, vaulting and other athletic exercises. On these occasions prizes and medals are presented to the successful competitors, and an invitation is extended to most of the town residents to join in the sports.

The close attention paid to cricket by the Wayne Country Club the past two or three years has given prominence to Wayne as a cricket centre. The club's cricket elevens have given excellent accounts of themselves in games played with Germantown, Merion, Belmont, Tioga, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

One of the attractions of this club is its lady membership, known as the Ladies' Associate Branch, which looks after the social features. Under the auspices of the Ladies' Branch, some of the most notable social events of Wayne have taken place in the club-house. Receptions, dances and card parties are of frequent occurrence.

WESTMORELAND CLUB, 1910 TIOGA STREET, TIOGA.

WESTMORELAND CLUB OF TIOGA.

THE Westmoreland Club was organized on September 13, 1888, and was incorporated on December 29 of the same year. The club has occupied their present house, at 1910 Tioga street, since its organization. During the past two years whist has been the principal form of entertainment, and the club claims to possess some of the most skillful players in clubdom. Several nights of each week are devoted to this popular game. The control of the club is vested in the usual officers and a board of seven directors, all of whom are elected annually. Following are the charter members of the Westmoreland Club: G. Edward Painter, W. T. G. Bristol, George B. Wright, Jonas Steelman, Jr., Oscar Hecker, Howard F. Burkhardt, J. C. Steelman, William B. Moore, Frederick A. Myers, Charles F. Thacher, Edwin A. Gaskill, R. B. Sheridan.

The membership consists of three kinds: Resident, non-resident and honorary. The entrance fee is $5, and the dues $24 per year. Many of the oldest and best known citizens of Tioga are among the members of the club. The immediate surroundings could hardly be improved upon, Tioga street being lined on either side with both ancient and modern mansions. Extensive improvements are contemplated by the Board of Directors during the coming year. The membership list has been considerably augmented since January last. The club has lost but one member by death, Charles F. Thacher, the first president of the organization, who departed this life in June last.

CORINTHIAN YACHT CLUB.

THE CORINTHIAN YACHT CLUB.

THE Corinthian Yacht Club, of Philadelphia, was organized on January 12, 1892, and incorporated on February 24 of the same year. The membership comprises resident, non-resident and honorary members, and is composed of well-known amateur yachtmen and club-men. Resident members, exclusive of yacht owners, are limited to 200. Non-resident members are those not residing within fifty miles of the City Hall. The management and control of the club is vested in a board of twelve trustees, together with a Race Committee, Committee on Admissions and House Committee. The entrance fee is $25, and the annual dues $25 for resident members, and one-half these amounts for non-resident members. Five general meetings are held each year, on the second Wednesdays of January, February, April, May and December. Yachts to be enrolled must be owned wholly by a member or members of the club.

The club-house and anchorage of the club is at Essington, Delaware Co., Pa., and is one of the most desirable places on the Delaware River for a yacht club station. The property comprises ten acres of ground, a commodious fourteen-roomed house, a large stable, extensive wharf and landing facilities, and a large basin for the winter storage of yachts.

Soon after its organization the present grounds at Essington, overlooking the Delaware, were secured, and the building which adorned them at the time was converted into a club-house. Since that time various improvements have been made, and the club is now admirably housed. The club-house stands upon a bluff directly on the shore, overlooking the entire harbor.

PHILADELPHIA YACHT CLUB.

THE PHILADELPHIA YACHT CLUB.

IN 1876 the Philadelphia Yacht Club was organized, and at the present time has a membership of about 120. It is probably the leading yacht club in the Quaker City, and has city rooms at 1715 Chestnut street, where pleasant entertainments are held during the winter.

The river house is situated at Tinicum, on the Delaware River, less than half an hour's ride on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The station is named in honor of the club. An adequate wharf has been constructed at a cost of several thousand dollars, and also a basin for the harboring of small yachts in summer and larger ones in winter. The club has erected dormitories for the use of members. Tennis courts, rifle ranges and clay pigeon traps are in close proximity to the club-house. The entrance fee is $25, and the annual dues are the same. Each spring the club goes on a cruise of some days' duration. Many of the yachts owned by members have reputations for great speed and beauty, and a number have secured prizes in first-class contests. The officers of the club consist of a commodore, vice-commodore, rear-commodore, secretary, treasurer, a board of trustees and several committees.

IONA BOAT CLUB.

THE IONA BOAT CLUB.

AT the extreme north of the row of handsome boat houses which face the Schuylkill river front on the drive, will be found the commodious and luxurious quarters of the Iona Club. The house, which is built of brown stone, is one of the largest of its kind, and situated as it is, at the bend of the river, enables its members to command a view of the river in both directions.

The interior decorations and furnishings are more apt to lead a stranger to believe that the house is the home of some rich bachelor than the quarters of oarsmen. The furniture and decorations are entirely in cherry, and of the most expensive kind. In every direction can be seen the trophies and banners which the victorious crews of this club have won.

The Iona Boat Club is one of the oldest along the river. It was chartered in 1876, and the list of charter members shows many men of prominence and influence. The boat account of the club shows that it has over $6000 invested in boats and outfits for the enjoyment and use of its members.

The Iona men give some very handsome cotillons and balls during the winter months, but at the same time take great interest in aquatics. In 1892 the gig crew, composed of Howard G. Taylor, stroke, Harry P. Burchell, No. 3, A. L. Scholl, No 2, and William B. Davis, bow, broke the record for the mile and one-half race in this class, winning both the junior and senior race in the same afternoon, thus enabling the club to carry off the Caldwell Prize. Huneker and Burchell of the "Pair-oared Fame," have done much toward bringing the club to the front in this particular line of sport.

READING ROOM, CENTURY WHEELMEN, 1606 NORTH BROAD STREET.

THE CENTURY WHEELMEN.

ON April 22, 1886, the Century Wheelmen was organized through the energy of Kirk Brown and Thomas Hare, who were convinced of the necessity of locating bicycle headquarters in the vicinity of Broad and Columbia avenue. The following were present at this meeting: Thomas Hare, E. L. Smith, Charles McGlathery, A. G. McGlathery, Frank M. Carr, Joseph M. Thomas, T. C. Hancock, William S. Allen, H. D. Allman, C. J. Mayer, R. C. Swayze, Kirk Brown, W. S. Delp, E. M. Steppacher, C. A. Snyder and T. L. Carr. The first house of the club was at 1612 Park avenue. In a short time this building became inadequate, as the membership had largely increased, and the club moved to 1807 North Broad street in May, 1887. On March 4, 1889, the storage house of the club was burned, and about this time the club decided to purchase a commodious house, and the property, 1606 North Broad street, was secured for $17,000. A charter was granted March 23, 1889. A wheel-room was built in the rear of the house, 25 x 65 feet, but was soon enlarged to 25 x 100 feet. At present there are over 300 members on the rolls, including many well-known riders. The club holds a number of prizes won by members in different races. The dues are $15 a year for active members, $10 for associate and $4.00 for non-resident. The entrance fee is $10. The club is governed by a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, captain and four additional directors, all of whom are annually elected.

ALDEN H. WEED,

EX-PRESIDENT OF THE CENTURY WHEELMEN.

THE PENN CLUB.

THIS organization had its origin in the Penn Monthly Association, and was organized to bring together men of all the arts and professions, specially interested in literary, scientific and artistic matters. In furtherance of this object the club during all the years of its existence has entertained in its informal and pleasant way many of those who have been most distinguished in their respective professions at home, and has extended the like courtesy to a large number of foreign visitors eminent in art and literature.

Being free from political bias the Penn Club has repeatedly given entertainments to men elected to fill the highest executive and judicial offices of the State, and to those appointed to represent the United States abroad.

It has filled, and fills, an important part in the social life of the city, and has largely contributed to the reputation for hospitality which Philadelphia enjoys.

MORTON McMICHAEL,
PRESIDENT OF THE PENN CLUB.
